PRISON SHOCKER: Housewife super glues herself to jailhouse lover during passionate embrace!

By JOE BERGER
Weekly World News

AUCKLAND, New Zealand — Love-hungry housewife Paulette Deck was so stuck on convicted killer Bernie Gaits that she visited him in prison — and super glued her body to his!

Roly-poly Paulette, 35, and her hoosegow honey were pasted together in an awkward embrace for more than an hour before peeved prison officials finally pried them apart.

"It was a wonder we got them loose at all without skinning them alive," said flabbergasted guard Gerard Martin.

"They were stuck together pretty tight by the time we found them, so it took lots of pulling and scraping and snipping to get them unstuck. But we're professionals and we got the job done."

Passionate Paulette met Bernie while she was doing volunteer work at a prison, and she fell head over heels for the Maori murderer.

Weeks later, the love-struck mother of three informed her hubby Henry that she planned to dump him and marry her jailbird beau the minute he's set free.

Cold-blooded Bernie, convicted of strangling his sleeping wife Serena in 1983, could be released on parole in 1998.

"I visited Bernie every chance I got, and things were fine until they decided to move him to a prison 150 miles away," perturbed Paulette later told reporters. "It just didn't seem fair, and we figured super glue was the perfect way to protest what they were doing."

So the shock-up sweeties glued their hands around each other's necks and stuck their tummies together — locking themselves in a clumsy lovers' hug.

"It took a while for the guard in the visitors' room to notice what we'd done, but when he did we suddenly had people pulling at us from all directions," Paulette recalled. "They had to work a long time to get us apart, but they were extremely gentle through it all — especially considering how mad they were."

But their schoolkid shenanigans were all for naught. The loverboy lifer was transferred to another prison, where poor Paulette's visits are limited to once a month.

Still, the determined damsel says she'll stand by her man till Hell freezes over.

"When my Bernie walks out that gate, I'll be there waiting for him," she vowed.

STUCK ON HER GUY!

LOVE-STRUCK Paulette Deck and her jailhouse lover Bernie Gaits squirted super glue on their hands and tummies and embraced. It took hours of pulling and scraping to get them unstuck.

8 WAYS TO HEAL A BROKEN HEART!

By MIKE FOSTER / Weekly World News

A broken heart is one of life's most painful experiences — but you can make mending yours a snap by following these eight surefire tips from expert Philip Golabuk, author of Recovering from a Broken Heart:

♥ DON'T BLAME YOURSELF. "When we lose someone we love, we tend to think, 'I did something wrong. What could I have done to prevent this?' " notes Golabuk.

"Stay away from this sort of self-blame. You've already suffered enough."

♥ BE PATIENT. Healing a broken heart usually takes more time than you expect. Some people get upset because they're still hurting after three or four months. But the pain can take years to get over.

♥ ACCEPT THAT YOU DID THE BEST YOU COULD. Tell yourself that you're learning from the suffering and you'll be a better person for it.

♥ DON'T TRY TO TOUGH IT OUT BY YOURSELF. After your loss, you'll want to curl up and hide. Instead, seek comfort from friends, family, a support group or a counselor.

♥ USE DEEP BREATHING. Calm yourself with slow, deep breaths. "Good breathing is nature's tonic," said Golabuk. "Try it and you'll feel stress and pain gradually slide away."

♥ RECALL THE WORST TIMES WITH YOUR EX. Remind yourself that the bad things such as arguments and worries are also over.

♥ TRY TO PUT OFF LONG-RANGE DECISIONS. "Realize that you're not thinking clearly right now. Concentrate on emotional healing and taking care of yourself," said Golabuk.

♥ BE YOUR OWN BEST FRIEND. "Refuse to sit at home," advised the expert. "Treat yourself to a fancy dinner, take in a play or movie, visit some friends. Do what it takes to work through your pain."

Best places to hide your valuables!

The best places for hiding valuables at your home are in a plastic bag under dirty laundry in your hamper or washer, underneath heavy furniture, inside a ceiling panel or in a sealed container buried in your yard, crime prevention experts say.

Among the worst places is the refrigerator — because munchy burglars often rummage there for food!

Are you stuck with an 'average' guy?

Your man is an "average Joe," ladies, if he:

- Stands 5 feet, 9 inches tall.
- Daydreams mostly about sex.
- Won't go to the doctor unless it's an emergency.
- Prefers white over colored underwear.
- Doesn't like to dance.
- Falls in love six times during his life.
- Won't stop to ask for directions while driving.
- Takes out all the household's garbage.
- Has sex three times a week.
- Would rather take a shower than a bath.

CHAIN-SMOKING CONTESTS ARE KILLING CHINA'S TOP STUDENTS!

By JOE BERGER / Weekly World News

IDIOT SCHOOLBOYS across China are literally smoking themselves to death.

BEIJING — China's cigarette-crazy students love to test their toughness by seeing who can smoke the longest without coming up for air — and dozens of nitwit kids have literally puffed themselves to death!

"These smoking contests are the latest fad among teenagers from Nanking to Lan-chou — and often the young people pay for their stupidity with their lives," said heartsick school official Shih Yung-kuei.

"They puff away for hours on end, and many times they collapse and die of nicotine poisoning.

"But the kids won't quit because the ones who survive are heroes — and the girls all want to go out with a guy who's won a smoking contest and lived to tell about it."

Happy-go-lucky honors student Tsai Chang-chou, 17, became the latest victim of the crackpot craze last month when he chain-smoked 183 cigarettes in 6 hours and 12 minutes to win a contest in Guiyang — then slumped to the floor dead.

"I begged my boy not to get into something so dangerous, but he was feeling the peer pressure. He said all his friends were entering the contest and they would call him a coward if he stayed out," said his devastated dad Huang, 38.

"So he won the admiration of his idiot friends and lost his life doing it. The poor kid dreamed of being a doctor — but now his

But outraged government officials say they're about to crack down on the sicko contests — and possibly impose the death penalty against anyone who organizes these disgusting events or entices teenagers into taking part in a puff-off.

Frantic parents tell shocked TV audience:

SPACE ALIENS STOLE OUR SON!

WEEKLY WORLD NEWS EXCLUSIVE

By LISA MERAKIS

SAN PEDRO SULA, Honduras — The grief-stricken parents of a 2-year-old kidnapped boy caused a sensation when they told a television news conference that they saw their son abducted by space aliens!

The couple, Luis and Maria Munoz, say they were with their son in their backyard on August 4 and watched in horror as a spherical UFO swooped down and two seven-foot-tall creatures grabbed the boy and placed him aboard the craft.

But police are skeptical. They believe the child, Pepe Munoz, was taken by criminals for sale on the black market. The Munozes said they called their news conference to give their version of events, insisting their bizarre story of Pepe's abduction is supported by numerous eyewitness accounts from neighbors.

"We have told our story to police investigators but so far they refuse to take us seriously," said Luis Munoz, a 31-year-old car dealer.

"Maria and I aren't dreaming — we saw space aliens take our son. You can still see the marks where the spaceship landed. Our son has vanished into thin air and we want someone to do something about it."

In their emotional news conference, the boy's distraught parents described seeing the glowing spacecraft that took the tot. They say they tried to call out to Pepe but they were paralyzed, unable to move or speak.

"First we saw a spherical aircraft with white lights on the side hovering in the sky over Pepe," the tense and exhausted Munoz said in his television appearance. "The craft landed near our boy and two large man-like creatures got out. They had green skin and yellow, glowing eyes.

ABDUCTED — Pepe Munoz in a snapshot taken last Christmas.

"We saw them run over to Pepe and grab him. They got back into the spacecraft and the UFO vanished in seconds."

San Pedro Sula police insist they are investigating the boy's disappearance, and that they are looking into all angles of the case.

"Apparently there were bright lights hovering over the area around the time the child disappeared on August 4," said police spokesman Geraldo Prado. "And some of the people who live in the area say they saw a fast moving disc-shaped object in the sky.

"However our investigations indicate there is a child theft ring operating in the community. We're looking at four other abductions in the same time period. Maybe Pepe fell victim to the same kidnappers."

But neighbors say they've only had brief discussions with police about the child's disappearance. At least two families who live nearby told reporters they witnessed strange bright lights hovering over their neighborhood on the night of Pepe's disappearance.

Five killed when body leaps from coffin!

BUJUMBURA, Burundi — Five hitchhikers riding on a truck bed were literally scared to death when a coffin next to them opened and a body jumped out!

The hitchhikers were so startled that they leaped to their deaths from the fast-moving truck.

Authorities said the five men hitched a ride with a truck driver and his partner who were transporting a coffin to bury a relative.

The partner decided to take a nap in the coffin and pulled the lid shut to protect himself from the rain.

When the partner woke up, he climbed out of the coffin and scared the hitchhikers silly, causing them to leap off the truck to their grisly deaths on the road below.

Words of hope for the 21

Dr. Bill

By GEORGE SANFORD

"The best is yet to be!" That is Billy Graham's upbeat prophesy about the fate that awaits mankind in the year 2000 — the start of the new millennium.

The legendary evangelist has touched the hearts of millions around the world with his famous crusades. Now, for the first time, Dr. Graham — who has been a friend and confidant to every U.S. president since Eisenhower — is telling his life story in an inspiring new autobiography, Just As I Am. In the book, the revered 78-year-old preacher also delivers a heartwarming message of hope for the millennium.

He indicates that Doomsday WON'T necessarily arrive in the year 2000 as other Bible experts have predicted, and there could be plenty of time before Jesus returns to Earth to judge mankind.

"What new opportunities await us in the new millennium, if God grants us more time before Christ comes again?" he asks.

The answer, he says, is a chance to save the souls of every living American!

As the millennium approaches, Dr. Graham predicts, there will likely be a backlash against sinful behavior, giving religion a new chance to blossom.

REV. GRAHAM'S optimistic new book, Just As I Am.

"The growing secularism and moral chaos of our age may actually make many people more open to the gospel.

"It will be an exciting time to be alive!"

The religious leader does admit, however, that things will probably get worse before they get better. As the year 2000 approaches, he warns, our nation's moral decay will worsen.

"American Christians will face new challenges. Rampant, aggressive secularism may force Christians onto the defensive or even reduce them to a despised minority. It has happened before. And the loss of our children to drugs or sensualism or the moral relativism propagated by mass entertainment does not bode well for our future."

Worse still, evil ideologies even more dangerous than Communism could sweep the world in the next few years, Dr. Graham suggests. "What new tyrannies will attempt to capture our world and what new ideologies will deceive humans to take the wrong path to me? Only God knows." Also, thanks to advances in global communications such as the Internet, foreign cultures will increasingly exert an influence on our society — not necessarily for the better, he notes.

"Developments in technology mean that the various societies now influence each other in ways we never could have envisioned a few generations ago.

"The world is changing, and with it the methods of evangelism will change also. But the message will NOT change, for it is timeless, meant for every generation."

That message, says the famed preacher, is that God loves us all.

"Our lives are never fulfilled and complete until His purpose becomes the foundation and center of our lives.

"He wants to fill our lives with meaning and purpose right now. Then He wants us to spend all eternity with Him in Heaven, free forever from the pain and sorrow and death of this world.

"Like any other gift, God's gift of salvation does not become ours until we accept it and make it our own. God has done everything possible to provide salvation.

"But we must reach out in faith and accept it."

The approaching millennium will bring with it many unsettling changes, he says.

"One thing will NOT change: God's love for humanity and His desire to see men and women yield their lives to Him and come to know Him in a personal way.

"No, I don't know the future, but I do know this: The best is yet to be. Heaven awaits us and that will be far, far more glorious than anything we can ever imagine."

Tightwad tipper stabbed by waiter

MUNICH, Germany — Waiter Helmut Voss, 26, is accused of grabbing a kitchen knife and stabbing a diner to death — because the guy left him a measly tip!

Police say Voss counted up the loose change left by 41-year-old businessman Wilhelm Scherer, then ran after Scherer and stabbed him in the back as he left the ritzy restaurant. The waiter is awaiting trial on a charge of murder.

Expert: Space aliens DO have private parts

NEW DELHI, India — Relax: Space aliens may not really be as weird as you think, according to a new paper by a UFO researcher.

Many people who've seen E.T.s describe them as appearing to be completely sexless, with no visible genitalia. But Professor Sankar Rathnam believes the aliens are merely wearing form-fitting space suits that conceal their sex organs.

"Countless reports of bedroom encounters between humans and visitors from space should be proof enough that aliens are sexual beings like ourselves," says the expert.

Wild West cowboys drank wimpy cocktails, NOT whiskey!

America's rootin'-tootin' Wild West gunslingers didn't saunter into a saloon and demand a shot of rotgut whiskey — they were much more likely to order a martini or a glass of fruit punch!

Researchers in Texas have discovered that most Old West cowpokes were crazy about cocktails. And one of the cowboys' favorites was a "thunder" — a shot of wine with an egg, powdered sugar and cayenne pepper, all shaken, strained and poured into a tumbler of ice.

Historians say bored bartenders in Wild West saloons

Scientists say: People of the future will be puny & bald!

Five thousand years from today, people will look downright weird, say anthropologists and other experts on evolution.

The humans who populate the jam-packed planet Earth in 6997 A.D. will be barely half as tall as today's average Homo sapiens, spindly, scrawny, and totally bald — including the women. And everybody's skin will be lighter.

"Some people say evolution ended 1,000 years ago, but that's rubbish," said anatomy professor Dr. Gabriel Lasker. "Changes are going on just as rapidly now as they ever were."

We'll look less robust 50 centuries from now, according to anthropologist Professor C. Loring Brace.

"We'll start to look like little old men in the future," said the anthropologist.

People will get paler and paler, Prof. Brace said. "Africans will be whiter, and Caucasians will be even paler."

Theoretical biologist Dr. Thomas Easton said, "Another difference will be a shorter jaw. That's already starting to happen through the loss of wisdom teeth."

The world population will swell to between 8 billion and 13.8 billion in another 5,000 years, predicted Dr. Easton.

"With a doubled or tripled world population, we'll be about half as tall as now because food will have to go at least twice as far," he said.

HOLLYWOOD'S ANSWER GIRL

Q Does Glenn Close really keep the butcher knife she wielded in Fatal Attraction on display in her home?

— Joe B., Pasadena, Md.

A You bet! The actress loves to hold onto memories from her movies — including the creepy prop she used as a psycho stalker in the hit thriller. "It's hanging near my kitchen pantry," Glenn revealed in an interview. "People always say, 'Is that what I THINK it is ...?'

But the prop weapon is actually made of cardboard, she admits. "In the close-ups when I was near Michael Douglas' face, they wouldn't allow me to have a real knife!"

Q What ever happened to Maria Schneider, the brunette cutie who starred opposite Marlon Brando in the controversial 1972 sex stinker Last Tango in Paris?

— Burt A., Chicago, Ill.

A Maria Q lives alone in Paris and recently made a comeback as the new Mrs. Rochester in a remake of Jane Eyre. But she's still haunted by the kinky Tango — which, she says, nearly killed her! The actress, who was just 19 when the flick was made, admits she had no idea what she was getting into. "Nothing could have prepared me for what happened when it came out.

"I was looked on as a dirty, perverted girl. I couldn't stand people looking at me all the time. I took heroin and cocaine to forget who I was. I was on that for seven years."

Q I've heard a rumor that Raymond star David Hasselhoff was hit soon at the Hollywood Wax Museum and wanted his dummy altered — because the figure didn't "fill out" his swimming trunks adequately. True or false?

— Ben N., Medford, Calif.

A David is not so small a man that he would make such a silly demand. He asked that the dummy be changed because it has too much CHEST HAIR.

Q One of my favorite characters in the whole OJ saga was Nicole Simpson's outspoken pal Faye Resnick.

She seems like one intelligent, classy, spunky lady to me. Incidentally, do you happen to know if there are any photos of her naked?

— George R., Naples, Fla.

A You're in luck! Sexy blonde Faye — who cashed in on the brutal slaying of her best friend Nicole with a tell-all paperback detailing their one-time lesbian affair — bared her buns in the March 1995 issue of Playboy.

Q If I were married to someone as deep-dread gorgeous as Denzel Washington, I would go nuts watching him make love to other women on screen. How does his wife feel about his movie love scenes?

— Vivian J., Lancaster, Pa.

A The entertainment attorney for the makers of a joint said he got carried away on the set.

"I have never done anything that would embarrass my wife Pauletta or cause her to slow any energy," he says.

"We are churchgoing, tithing Christians.

Dirt-hating weirdo is a real-life Mr. Clean!

By TEDDY GERALD / Weekly World News

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — Dirt-hating Dino Krullo is so terrified of germs that he takes a three-hour shower every morning, brushes his teeth for 45 minutes after every meal — and goes through 35 bars of soap a week!

The scrub-crazy computer whiz uses 100 yards of dental floss each month and often spends two hours just washing veggies for his dinner salad.

"I just like to keep clean, you know, because there are germs and bacteria everywhere you look," said dingbat Dino, 37. "You've got to get them before they get you.

"I certainly can't see anything wrong with that."

But a flabbergasted judge ordered Dino to undergo psychological counseling after he got caught sneaking out of a store with 33 bars of soap stuffed in his pants.

Defense attorney Angel Gomez told the court his kooky client had to steal the soap because he'd lost his job at a local accounting firm. "His boss fired him because he was always in the bathroom washing his hands and brushing his teeth," Gomez said.

"When he wasn't washing his hands or brushing his teeth, he was scrubbing the keys of his computer with some kind of disinfectant.

"All that washing made it impossible for him to get any work done."

Immaculate Dino said he normally hops out of bed at 4:30 a.m. to begin his morning shower, even though he no longer has to worry about getting to work.

"I look forward to my shower. It's the happiest part of my day," the batty bachelor testified. "All that sudsy water running over my body makes me feel so clean.

"I usually shower and wash my hair from 4:30 to 7:30, and then I brush and floss till nearly 8:30."

Next, Dino said, he goes to work scouring and dusting his tiny two-room apartment.

Mr. Clean also confessed he wouldn't think of eating an apple or a tomato without scrubbing it for at least an hour.

"You never know what's been handling them," he said.

Judge Diego Estepona said he agreed that cleanliness is next to godliness but said he thought soap-swiping Dino is taking things way too far. He consented to place him on probation for theft on condition he begin seeing a psychiatrist.

4 SURE-FIRE WAYS TO LOSE YOUR JOB!

You're deceiving yourself — and maybe keeping yourself from getting ahead or even losing your job — if you believe some of the most common myths about the workplace, says an expert.

Here are those myths — and the facts behind them.

MYTH: Saying, "I haven't had time to do it," can get you off the hook if you sound honest and sincere.

FACT: We all have the same amount of time — and not having enough of it is no excuse. You'd better make the best priorities your priorities — even if you have to make the time for them.

MYTH: Your boss will hold every mistake you make against you.

FACT: In many cases, bosses appreciate employees who show initiative even if they make some goofs. Just don't make the same mistake twice.

MYTH: Putting in lots of extra hours makes you look good.

FACT: Instead of making you appear energetic, this can be seen as inefficiency. And don't stay late working on something the boss doesn't really care about.

MYTH: Every chance you get, tell the boss how hard you work.

FACT: Do that and you're just looking for trouble. Your remarks can be taken as a complaint, making it appear you don't like your job. Instead, let your accomplishments speak for themselves.

Yawning man's jaws lock open — & he's been stuck that way for weeks!

By JOE BERGER, Weekly World News

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — Hapless Harmon Munte sat up in bed one morning, stretched and yawned — then discovered he couldn't close his mouth!

And four heartbreaking weeks later, the baffled businessman is still running around with his mouth gaping open like a dying mackerel.

"I know I look like a damn fool, but there's nothing I can do about it — and apparently the doctors can't do anything, either," the flabbergasted Florida man said in a note scribbled to reporters.

"I've never been so embarrassed or so uncomfortable in my life."

Hard-luck Harmon, 33, figured he'd suffered merely a minor setback the morning he awoke in his suburban home with a yawn that wouldn't quit.

"We both thought his jaw had locked up on him and the doctor would be able to snap him out of it pretty easily," said his weary wife Regina. "But it didn't work that way.

"We've been to five different specialists so far, and none of them can tell us why Harmon can't shut his mouth. And because they don't know what's wrong, they have no idea how to treat him.

"They told me they've seen more than one case like this recently and they said it may be some kind of psychological problem. But that's nuts. Until this thing came along, Harmon didn't have a worry-up in the world."

The frustrated father of three says he's determined to get on with his life, despite a yap that won't stop yawning.

"I've had to take a leave from the insurance company where I work, but I can still play with my kids and be around the pool with my friends — even if I can't talk and I look like an idiot," he said in a written exchange with reporters.

"Anytime I go out in public, everybody stares, of course. But I'm getting so I don't really care, except when the police get in on the act.

"The other day a cop saw me driving around like this and stopped me just on general principles. I had to write out a long note explaining my problem just to keep him from carting me off to the looney bin. He was almost certain he'd found himself a nut case."

Since he can't chew, helpless Harmon survives on broth and baby food administered by his patient mate. And once in a while, he chokes down a little extra protein — much to his chagrin.

"When you're forced to walk around with your mouth wide open like this all day, flies and other bugs are always trying to use your tongue for a landing strip," said the disheartened dad.

"And a few of them al

Doghouse struck by lightning grows leaves!

HOMESTEAD, Fla. — Bill Sweat's doghouse was struck by lightning — and now it's beginning to grow!

The structure has sprouted roots, sprigs and buds since it was razed on August 29, and baffled experts confirm it's come alive.

"The damn thing is a living organism," said Dr Roger Leaks, a biologist who has studied the wooden doghouse intensively.

"I've been a scientist for 34 years and I've never seen anything like it.

"This weathered old dog house is growing like a tree."

The mind-blowing phenomenon was triggered when a bolt of lightning grazed the rear of the old doghouse during an intense tropical thunderstorm.

Owner Bill Sweat saw the strike but didn't think much about it until he noticed a sprig and two tiny leaves growing out of the right side a few days later.

"It seemed to be growing right out of the wood but I thought 'Nah. There's got to be a little seed stuck in there,'" he said.

He said the thing was growing and alive and I almost fell out of my chair. My dog Bobo even looks at it funny. He hasn't gone in there since it was hit."

Scientists say they aren't sure why the doghouse is growing but they think electricity from the lightning bolt somehow energized the wooden planks, causing them to sprout back to life.

"I can't think of anything else that could have caused it," said Dr Leaks, who is planning to publish an article on the case of a dead doghouse for a scientific

TODAY'S SCHOOLS ARE TURNING KIDS INTO A BUNCH OF IDIOTS!

I'm madder than Albert Einstein with a busted calculator over the way our public schools are graduating idiots as fast as they can turn 'em out!

No wonder this great country is going to hell in a handbasket.

Results of the latest Ater Carnegie Poll show that seven out of 10 American fourth graders think Pearl Harbor is some woman who used to sing country music. Now that's frightening, folks.

But what's really scary is that the same poll, which had a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percent, found that 83 percent of high school seniors visibly move their lips when they read.

And that survey didn't include the kids who couldn't read a lick in the first place.

ED ANGER'S 1937 school photo included seven future doctors and two Nobel Prize winners. Then's fat in the stools.

Now, in places like Ireland that wouldn't be a big deal, 'cause everyone over there flaps their lips when they read — it's like a tradition or something.

But this is America, dadgummit — and we don't stand for that stuff here.

I say our kids are in the fast lane to Moronville because there's not enough discipline in the classrooms.

Remember those late, great schoolhouses of yesteryear when hardball teachers would slap the hell out of you for the hell of it? That's what we need more of today.

I remember when I was a boy growing up in South Dakota and times were tough.

I had to walk 14 miles each way to a one-room red schoolhouse — after I had milked the cows, strung a mile of barbed wire and plowed two acres behind the family mule.

Miss McCarthy was our teacher and she didn't take any crap from anybody.

I once saw her rip off Danny Rogers's right ear. She yanked on it so hard. And that was just for picking his teeth with a piece of straw.

I still walk with a slight limp from when the Stroke poker because I hadn't finished my homework.

Today's kids could use a little dose of that kind of medicine, folks.

Miss McCarthy would have already poisoned or shot half of the little vermin who infest America's public school system in 1937.

And another thing: In my 1937 school photo — the kid with the curls around his head is me — there are seven future doctors, two Nobel Prize winners, three preachers, two generals and one of the first female jet pilots.

Now, I'm not saying that all of those kids grew up to be successful, but I'm willing to bet that most of them did.

Today, I'll bet you couldn't find seven kids who could read their own names and have enough savings and loan precedent in the bank. In other words, not one rotten apple in the barrel.

So now you know why eight out of 10 American high school grads can't make change for a dollar — because they never had the daylights beat out of 'em in the early grades, that's why.

When all the bleeding-heart liberals banned paddles from the classroom, we might as well have locked the damn doors, folks.

ED ANGER'S SCHOOL POLL

☐ YES: Schools ought to be like they were in Ed's day — when teachers could beat the hell out of the kids until they straightened up and did their lessons.

☐ NO: Even today's spoiled brats don't deserve to be severely beaten about the head or lower back just because they screw and spit at their teachers.

MONA LISA WAS A HOOKER!

By JANET DIAMOND / Weekly World News

ROME — The shocking secret behind the Mona Lisa's serenely satisfied smile was sent indelibly, the model for the world's most famous painting was a highly paid prostitute who even slept with the Pope's brother!

Italian professor Carla Veere uncovered the scandalous secret while trying to track down the identity of the real Mona Lisa. After wading through piles of letters and diaries belonging to artist Leonardo da Vinci, Dr. Veere's research finally paid off.

He discovered a note from one of the famous artist's pupils naming the model as Isabella Gualandi, who was born in Naples in 1491. The lovely Isabella not only took the Vatican by storm but she also carried on an affair with Giuliano de Medici, brother of Pope Leo X.

The highly respected Neapolitan University professor claims Giuliano gave da Vinci a staple in the Vatican.

He then invited the artist to paint his mistress.

The priceless painting now hangs behind bullet-proof glass in the Louvre in Paris.

Man is killed by insomnia

By MOE BUSTINA / Weekly World News

BOLOGNA, Italy — Doctors say a man is resting in peace at last after suffering a case of insomnia so severe that he died following six sleepless months.

The 53-year-old Italian's fatal case of insomnia was reported in the Italian Journal of Medicine by Dr. Elio Lugaresi of the University of Bologna Medical School.

Dr. Lugaresi said that the first symptoms started showing up nine months before the patient's death.

Before he was stricken, the man, who was not identified in the doctor's report, had always slept between five and seven hours each night. Every afternoon the man took a half-hour nap.

In the initial stages of the illness, the man was able to sleep only two or three hours a night.

"Two months later, the patient could sleep for only one hour per night and was frequently disturbed by vivid dreams during which he would rise from his bed, stand and give a military salute," Dr. Lugaresi said.

"When he was awakened by his relatives, he was disoriented and could no longer perform even simple tasks.

"Ten months after the onset of symptoms, normal sleep became impossible for the patient and the dreaming episodes became more frequent."

Dr. Lugaresi said the man was admitted to the hospital where he would slowly lapse into a stupor whenever he was left alone.

Doctors tried to treat the insomnia by prescribing a variety of sleeping pills, but nothing worked.

Three months after the symptoms began, the patient could not sleep at all.

As time went on, doctors treating him found all the patient's speech became unintelligible, he was disoriented and could no longer perform even simple tasks.

NO MATTER WHAT YOUR MOUTH SAYS, IT'S YOUR EYES THAT DO THE TALKING

No matter what your mouth says, your eyes and body movements do most of the talking, says a leading psychologist.

Verbal communication "only carries 7 percent of the total message in a conversation," said Dr. Johanna Hunsicker. "The balance of the message is communicated 'nonverbally, involuntarily and subconsciously' through a person's body language — specifically through the eyes," she said.

Here are some eye movements catalogued by Miss Hunsicker:

• Eye contact indicates a desire to communicate. Prolonged eye contact, however can mean coldness, rudeness, anger or dislike. Lack of eye contact indicates disinterest, shyness or guilt.

• Rapid blinking indicates a person is very anxious. Normal blinking is about 6 to 10 times a minute. An anxious person may blink up to 100 times a minute.

• Wide and alert eyes usually indicate an enthusiastic person. Sometimes, however, wide eyes indicate

Your questions about DREAMS ... answered!

By MICHAEL STEVENS Weekly World News

Dreams. Chances are that you're fascinated by these experiences — and have dozens of questions about them.

Top dream researcher Dr. Stephen LaBerge has answered the most frequently asked questions for Weekly World News readers.

● Why do we dream?

"To help us deal with our emotional conflicts," he says.

● Do dreams foretell the future?

"My best guess is that dreams do foretell the future — but not the way most people think they do," Dr. LaBerge says. "Dreams frequently call to awareness something that was overlooked awake. For example, you may dream of an impending illness which later comes to pass. You were probably already experiencing the symptoms, but you ignored them."

● Why can't I remember my dreams?

"Chances are you're perfectly normal and healthy — and you have no strong reason for remembering them," says Dr. LaBerge.

● How can I remember dreams?

"The key to remembering dreams is wanting to do so," Dr. LaBerge answers. "Each night, before dropping off to sleep, tell yourself: 'I will remember at least one dream.' Then, when you awake, jot down your recollections."

● Do pets and other animals dream?

"There's good evidence that animals do dream, just like humans. Almost every dog owner can report seeing his pet growl in his sleep — as though he were having a very vivid dream."

● What's the best way to get over a recurrent dream?

"You may have to change your life-style in some way. For example, if you repeatedly dream of being late for a meeting, it could mean you have an overburdened schedule."

● Most dreams are related to sex in some way, aren't they?

"That's a myth. Only about 10 percent of dreams which have been analyzed contain direct sexual references."

● How can I find out what my dreams mean?

"Conduct a dream interview with yourself," he advises. "And ask yourself: 'What does it mean to me?' The meaning of all our dreams are buried in our subconscious."

SPACE ALIENS DRAINED MY BLOOD

Alien killed my veins with a mysterious yellow fluid, says shaken steelworker

By TANYA BROOKS
Weekly World News

BETHLEHEM, Pa. — Steelworker Keith Gritfner says he's never been the same since space aliens abducted him and stole every drop of blood in his body — and replaced it with a mysterious yellow fluid!

The 41-year-old man says he was kidnapped while driving his pickup along a backcountry road at about 8:30 p.m. on the night of August 3.

He says he saw an earthquake white light hovering over the road about a mile ahead of him and watched in amazement as the light moved swiftly toward him.

Seconds later he heard a high pitched wail buzzing inside. he says — and the next thing he knew he was yanked out of his truck and lifted through the air by a mysterious force.

"I was sucked right into a great big oval shaped aircraft that was just hanging there in the air over my truck," Gritfner recalls. "There I was inside this weird padded room lying on a table with four alien space creatures staring at me.

"The spacemen had huge eyes and almost no nose or mouth. They didn't talk, but I could hear their voices somehow inside my head.

"They told me not to be afraid and that I wouldn't be hurt if I cooperated."

TESTS confirm Gritfner's veins contain a sticky fluid instead of normal blood

While a frightened Gritfner trembled in terror the space creatures took out a giant syringe attached to a vacuum device and clamped it to his right arm. The spacemen drew every drop of blood out of the terrified widower's body — while another machine attached to his left arm pumped some foul of a bright yellow liquid.

During the procedure Gritfner said overwhelming He awoke in the cab of his pickup, which was parked at the side of the road. Behind a splitting headache but otherwise felt normal.

COMMON SCENTS CURES

Kitchen and garden items treat ailments — for pennies

SWEET SMELL OF HEALTH! Aromatherapist Marcel Lavabre shows you how to tap into the healing powers of common items.

You can save hundreds of dollars on drugs and cure what ails you in a jiffy — by treating yourself with fragrances found in your own home and garden!

That's the claim of top aromatherapist Marcel Lavabre, whose Handbook of Aromatherapy (Healing Arts Press) tells how to use the power of scents to improve health.

"People can use the everyday products in their own kitchens to cure colds, reduce fatigue and for countless other ailments," says Lavabre.

"Of course, for serious problems, I strongly recommend that you see your doctor. But for minor aches and pains scent therapy is a natural, effective and safe way to feel better."

Lavabre has spent years extracting the essential oils of scores of flowers, common herbs and fruits and researching their effects on the human body.

He says readers can extract the same miracle substances by collecting the plant or fruit of their choice and crushing it until it is a concentrated paste. Add water if necessary. Used as instructed — a tablespoon should be enough — the super scents will have you feeling better in no time.

Clip and save Lavabre's chart of common ailments and the aromas you can use to cure them.

The question you might very well ask is why put garlic and vinegar in a pill? The disturbing fact is, untold thousands if not millions of health-conscious men and women who would like to take advantage of this legendary Biblical prescription avoid it because they don't like to chug vinegar out of the bottle or eat fresh garlic for fear of offending their friends.

Odorless garlic capsules are widely available of course but taking garlic without vinegar is like wearing a mascara without a lens! That's why I worked hand-in-glove with leading industry experts to combine the pure, powerful goodness of PREMIUM apple cider vinegar and odorless garlic powders in a single convenient pill. Now at long last, the legendary power and potency of garlic and apple cider vinegar are available to everyone with no "downside" whatsoever.

And because every herb Infinity Herbs bottles is the best money can buy, it's easy for me to back the odorless garlic and apple cider vinegar pill with the industry's strongest money-back guarantee. If you aren't thrilled with your odorless garlic and apple cider vinegar capsules, just call toll-free and I'll write your refund check by hand and mail it to you that day.

Just so you'll know the odorless garlic and apple cider vinegar pill is the cornerstone of an exciting new line of BIBLE HERBS that are available only from Infinity and not sold in any store I call them BIBLE HERBS because they are part of a matchless herbal tradition that is featured throughout the Bible and clearly dates back to the beginning of all things.

I also want you to know that unlike greedy, money-grubbing corporations that only look at the bottom line, Infinity Herbs, established in 1985, commits significant time, energy and resources to assist grassroots groups and individuals who are striving with God's help to make the world a better place, not in some distant country, but right here — in the United States.

I want to have sex with EVERY man on Earth!

SHARON in Santa Rosa

Dear Dotti: As an attractive and sensual woman of 31, it has finally occurred to me that I can never settle down and marry. The reason? To confine my loving to one man would be criminal! I don't want to brag, but I'm a love machine extraordinaire — and I've decided to devote my life to sharing my charms with every man on Earth. My problem is my family. Mom and Dad, for instance, get physically ill whenever I mention my life's goal. And my brothers are trying to make me see a psychiatrist, as they clearly don't understand me. That's where you come in, Dotti. How can I make them see the light? — Sharon in Lake Merritt

Dear Sharon: Your family is the right place. Dear psychiatrist. So get out [illegible] Dotti

Hotheaded granny cusses like a sailor!

Dear Dotti: My grandmother moved in with my parents until we a few months ago and she's pretty much made our lives the pits. The worst part of it is she's got a temper like you wouldn't believe — and curses her head off when she does it! Not on me, for the reason of all. I'm 19 and I promise that I'm not doing anything to upset her. On the contrary, I bow and scrape like she's royalty. When you get down to it, I've had it with the old goat. So how can I get free of my life for good?" — David in Carthage

DAVID in Carthage

Dear David: I have a challenge for your parents. If you're at all a reminder of your grandmother, I'll keep your rat in hell with [illegible] — I don't have any [illegible] to change.

Nit-picking hubby gives me the silent treatment!

Dear Dotti: My husband of [illegible] years is driving me crazy. He's a nit-picker of the highest order. Nothing I do is right. He criticizes my cooking, my housekeeping, my appearance — you name it, he finds fault with it. Lately, he's been giving me the silent treatment for days and even weeks on end. I come from a large family where everybody fussed and fought. Dotti, but at least we got things out in the open and got our problems behind us. The one thing I've learned about men is that the silent treatment is a ploy to make somebody read the silent treatment." If so please help me. — Had It in Spencer

Idiot co-worker makes my life a living hell!

Dear Dotti: I work in an office with about 10 other people. Everybody is pretty decent and fairly easy to get along with. BANDIT USES A CUCUMBER TO ROB 16 BANKS

CAPTURED ON FILM: Cops used this series of startling photographs taken by a security camera to identify Ernie Covely as the cucumber bandit

WEEKLY WORLD NEWS
SUPER AUTUMN SPECIAL!

Veggie-packin' varmint [redacted] holdup, [redacted] cops

LONDON — In one of the craziest crime sprees ever, oddball bandit Ernie Covely stuck up 16 banks — with a cucumber!

In each case, the veggie varmint pointed a cylindrical crime at a lady teller and shouted "Give me the money or I'll blow your head off!"

And each time, the terrified teller — thinking evil Ernie was brandishing a sawed-off shotgun — meekly handed over the loot.

"This may have been the strangest series of robberies in this city's history," a dumbfounded detective told reporters.

Dr JOE BERGER

expert, world news

"To get away with a stunt like that so many times is really remarkable. But he virtually had the cucumber wrapped up in a trash bag, so his victims could never be sure he didn't have a gun."

After each of his successful stickups during his robbery rampage, elated Ernie would rush home, unwrap his haul — then chop up his cucumber for salads or sandwiches.

"He was cautious enough money he could afford a new cucumber each time he pulled a job," said Detective Owen Blank.

The cuke-wielding crook normally walked up to a teller, set a shopping bag down on the counter and hauled his long green "gun" out of the bag.

The ladies he confronted were so scared of his voluminous veggie they forked over more than $20,000 during his weekly crime spree.

But the Cucumber Kid's salad days came to an end when investigators identified him from security camera photos and surrounded the house in East London he shared with a girlfriend. When they arrested him, cops said, 36-year-old Ernie was as cool as — well, you know.

"He said the money was all gone, that he'd spent it all on drugs," Detective Blank said. Ernie pleaded guilty to eight counts of robbery.

Judge Edwin Jewett told him he was in a real pickle and could bank on a long prison term.

'I DESERVED TO BE RAPED!'

By BEATRICE DEXTER / Weekly World News

PARIS — A 19-year-old coed who was raped by three youths dropped charges against her attackers — because she believes she deserved to be raped!

Pretty brunette Nancy Lemoine says her dress and behavior led to the sexual assault and she has vowed to change her ways rather than sending her rapists to jail.

"I brought it on myself," said Nancy, a junior in college. "I have a very sexy body and I used to love to display it. I used to wear tight blouses and short skirts. I loved to flirt.

"Now I know what I was doing wrong.

"I never thought about how I was tempting men. I only thought about the attention I was getting. Well, I finally got more attention than I'd bargained for. I got raped, and I deserved it."

The philosophy major says she believes she led her rapists on before the April 1, 1987, attack. She had met them in a fancy private club and agreed to accompany the men — three fellow students from her university — to their apartment.

The group had been drinking, Nancy said, and when they got to the boys' apartment, they continued to swig down glasses of wine and beer.

"I was joking suggestively with them and dancing around wiggling my hips," Nancy recalled. "Suddenly, one of the guys grabbed me — and before I knew it, all three wanted to make love to me.

"I resisted, but they went ahead anyway. I think they felt I was just playing hard to get."

After the rape, Nancy filed charges with the police. But her guilt led her to re-evaluate her own behavior and after several days the rape victim told police she would not testify against her attackers.

Today Nancy has switched to conservative clothing and demure behavior.

She no longer goes to bars unattended and does not go out with men unless they are introduced to her by friends.

"I feel terrible about what happened to me," she said. "I feel I was responsible for my own

WHAT a neat secret message from the Orient that must! It's easy and fun to decipher. Here's the key to decoding your message:

If the number of letters in your first name is 5 or less, subtract that number from 7. If there are more than 5 letters in your first name, subtract the total from 13.

Now take the result and find your key letter in the word ORIENT above. Starting at the upper left corner of the box below, check each one of your key letters as it appears from left to right. The series of letters below your key letters spell out a coded message for you.

BAPTIZES FOLLOWERS WITH JUMPER CABLES!

By ROBERT CUNNINGHAM / Weekly World News

In the Electrifying Church of the New Light, fiery preacher Ezra Barnable "zaptizes" his flock with jumper cables attached to an automobile battery.

"I want them to feel the power of God blast the sin from their body," said the hellfire-and-brimstone preacher. "I want them to be electrified by the experience."

His tiny church is tucked away in hill country near the Uinta Mountains in northeastern Utah and boasts 127 members, including 21 children.

"The families who belong to our church are farmers and ranchers who live close to the land and read their Bibles every day," said the Rev. Barnable. "We are close-knit people who mind our own business.

"I am the first to admit that our ways of worshipping Jesus are unconventional and may seem strange to some people, but they work," said the minister.

"We don't worship idols, tempt poisonous snakes or build huge temples in God's name, but we try to practice His will. If our ways trouble outsiders, them let them remain outsiders."

The Rev Barnable wouldn't say how much voltage is used in his baptismal ceremony.

"Obviously we use a harmless but holy amount," he said.

No one older than 70 or younger than 3 is baptised with the jumper cables and battery.

Those with severe heart or other medical problems also are excused.

The bizarre baptisms are held four times a year. Candidates kneel before the preacher, who has a highly charged car battery ringed to the jumper cables.

"I touch the cables together to create sparks and then I touch them with it," said the fiery preacher. "They tense up for a split second as the shock hits. Then we all bow our heads in prayer."

Horace Wilburne and his two teenage daughters are among those who have been zaptized by Barnable.

"I closed my eyes and felt the holy ghost enter my body," said Horace. "My life hasn't been the same since that wonderful day. I have truly been saved."

The Rev. Barnable's weird way of zaptizing people has caused no problems with ar-

WORLD'S BIGGEST KILLED

By JOHN MEREDITH Weekly World News

GENEVA, Switzerland — Neighbors called Sarah Schneider the "world's biggest busybody" but the spying spinster got her comeuppance when somebody broke into her house — and fired a bullet through her heart!

And while police have no shortage of suspects – the woman literally kept spy dossiers on 46 neighbors – they said an arrest is almost certainly weeks, if not months, away.

"The woman had more enemies than Jack the Ripper," Police Lt. Rupert Stuber told reporters.

She kept extensive files on 46 neighbors and knew their innermost secrets. How often they made love, what they argued about, how much money they had in the bank, how much money they owed creditors, their affairs — the whole works.

"As far as we're concerned, each and every one of those neighbors is a suspect. We're going to take a long, hard look at all of them."

Miss Schneider's neighbors were reluctant to talk with reporters. But they confirmed that the 56-year-old woman spied on them in every way imaginable and made their lives, as one neighbor put it, "a living hell."

"We knew what she was up to but there wasn't a whole heck of a lot we could do about it," said the neighbor. "She was the smallest, manipulative woman I've ever seen.

"If you saw her on the street she wouldn't say, 'Hello.' She'd say, 'The power company's going

BUSYBODY

Spying spinster kept files on 46 neighbors

. . . and they're ALL suspects!

DETECTIVE Jakob Deshler had an entire file on the spooky way Zorah spied on her neighbors.

Alma Schneider was murdered, her neighbors actually pitched in and hired private detective Jakob Deshler to watch the woman and get the proof they needed to charge her with harassment.

"She was a holy terror, that's for sure," said the private detective. "I've got pictures of her spying from windows and a ladder and even going through garbage cans, mailboxes and the glove compartments in their cars.

"It's hard to say what her motives were. She must have been awfully lonely or bored," Deshler observed.

Said Lt. Stuber: "Sooner or later we'll get to the bottom of this, but with the number of suspects, it's going to take some time.

"In a way, it's funny. Normally we police officers have to work for months to come up with a suspect in a murder case. But this time we've got 46 suspects — and that's going to make the case even tougher to crack."

Egg-eating champ chomps down 4-lb. ostrich egg!

PARIS — Rene Glot is claiming the world record for eating a hard-boiled egg in one minute, 48.37 seconds.

But he didn't scarf down a teeny-weeny chicken egg — it was a whopping four-pound ostrich egg!

Glot knocked a full minute off the record set in 1972 by Joe Carter of Cleveland, who ate a chicken egg in 2 minutes, 48 seconds.

Acupuncture turns dud pigs into barnyard STUDS!

WEEKLY WORLD NEWS
SUPER AUTUMN SPECIAL!

'Now, they're like stallions!'

LONDON — Pig breeders here are using acupuncture — to spice up their prized porkers' sex lives!

Incredibly, sluggish male pigs are hot to trot after being stuck in the neck and snout with needles.

"We are amazed, but it is quite true," said one animal husbandry expert at Britain's Bishop Burton college.

"Acupuncture does help pigs' sex drive. The ancient Asian treatment changes them dramatically. Now they're like stallions."

It gives boars more spirit, gets sows in the mood and also cures a number of illnesses."

At first, English farm experts thought visiting Japanese student Tetsuo Yamashita was pulling their leg when he told them the ancient art has been used for thousands of years on pigs in Japan.

But the oriental wonder worker made believers out of them when he got out his needles and deftly placed the technique with remarkable results. He turned lowlibido pigs into passionate porkers in minutes and treated a number of physical ailments as well.

"The cure was complete," said college market leg director Simon Foster.

"Mr. Yamashita cured the sow of a tumor inside of 24 hours and also corrected an eye disorder, pneumonia and lameness. The animals didn't feel a thing. They just stood there while Mr. Yamashita stuck them full of four-inch needles. We couldn't believe how pure it looked."

8 easy ways to be more popular!

By DORIS MARTINO / Weekly World News

You can be more popular and have more friends by following eight simple tips, says an expert.

1. Be friendly. It's hard not to like somebody who acts like a friend.

When you're with others, offer to be helpful, pay a compliment, smile, be outgoing. Take an interest in people.

2. Take pride in your appearance. People are attracted to those who take pains with their appearance neatly and appropriately, said Dr. Frederick Koenig.

3. Be easy to get along with. Don't be too temperamental and demanding. Let people feel they can relax around you, said Dr. Koenig.

"A temperamental person has to stop one day and say, 'I'm changing. I'm changing.' And the next time the choice of a meal or a movie comes up, he has to say to others, 'Yes, changes.'"

4. Be reliable. Don't be late for appointments and make people feel they're not important. Always do what you tell them you're going to do. And never repeat anything you're told in confidence.

5. Don't be envious. Envy can consume and drain you emotionally.

"Why does this person have so many friends?" or "Why does this person have an easy life?" you're going to be seen by others as mean-spirited," said Dr. Koenig. Count your own blessings.

6. Don't be too proud. A touch of humility is a good thing, but don't overdo it, of course.

7. Be active. The more you mix with people, the more opportunities you'll have to meet and make new friends. Join a club, play in the office bowling league, etc.

8. Be yourself. Don't try to be someone you're not and put on airs.

If you want to expand your vocabulary, for example, that's fine — but don't start using words nobody will understand or you'll just put people off.

BIRMINGHAM, England — Thanks to breast implants, curvy mom Marsha Mishales had a figure to rival a Playboy centerfold's — until she got hit in the chest with a dart and one of her boobs popped like a balloon!

The bizarre accident occurred while the mother of two was playing darts with friends in the family playroom.

As she walked in front of the dart board to mark down her score, she got nailed in the left breast with a dart thrown by her 12-year-old son Johnny.

"I'd just hit the bull's-eye and was going to mark it down when I felt a twinge in my left breast," said the pretty blonde.

"When I looked down and saw the dart, I made the mistake of pulling it out."

As her son and horrified friends looked on, the poor woman's implant, filled with a saline solution, deflated right before their eyes.

The hapless housewife said she could only stand there in stunned surprise over what had happened.

"I couldn't believe my eyes. As soon as I yanked out the dart, my boob deflated like a dime-store balloon," she said. "It was awful."

Now I'm flat as a board on one side, just like before the operation. I don't know how a dart could have caused this to happen."

Plastic surgeon Dr. Adam Eller said that though it's unusual for breast implants to burst, it's not unheard of.

"I knew of at least five cases where breast implants have leaked or deflated," he said.

"Mrs Mishales' implants were filled with a saline solution instead of silicone gel, so it could leak out quite easily if the bag were pierced.

"Evidently, the dart went into her breast far enough to puncture the saline-filled implant and when she pulled it out, the solution leaked out."

Fortunately, the breast can be easily repaired, said the doctor.

The relieved woman isn't sure when she's going to get the breast fixed, but it will be soon. "I saved for eight years to afford the operation and I'll not go around looking lopsided for long," she said.

As for Johnny, he's now out of the doghouse.

"It was an accident but he was scared to death. I really felt sorry for him," said Marsha.

Peel off 2 lbs. a week

You'll enjoy 3 meals a d favorite foods on . . . T

By SUSAN THOMAS / Weekly World News

You can lose up to two pounds a week and get into super-slim shape by following the "Easiest Diet Ever."

The exciting weight-loss plan was developed by top nutritionists. And it's incredibly easy to stick to because you only have to diet every other day!

It's a dream come true: You don't have to worry about diet-wrecking cravings — because the plan allows you to eat the foods you love most.

With other plans, people often get discouraged and give up because they face weeks or even months before they can once again enjoy their favorite foods.

But with this new diet "you're never more than a day away from your favorite meal!" declared Dr. Frederick Stare, a nutrition expert.

"You eat three meals a day and plenty of snacks, and get to eat your favorite foods every other day, so it's easy to stick to this diet plan.

"It's healthy, nutritious, effective, and will allow you to lose up to two pounds a week. It's the easiest diet ever."

A DIET doesn't have to be a form of self-inflicted punishment. Following the Easiest Diet Ever allows you to lose up to 2 pounds a week — and still enjoy your favorite foods.

day and snacks — and get to eat your he est iet er!

Here are six simple rules to follow on your Easy Diet Plan:

1 On your diet days, eat three meals a day based on the sample daily menu and food list.

2 On your off-diet days, enjoy your favorite foods. There's no need to count calories, but eat sensibly and don't pig out. Whenever possible, choose low-fat, low-calorie versions of these foods, said Dr. William Castelli, famed heart specialist.

For example, substitute skim milk for whole milk, thin-sliced and low-fat cheese for regular.

"You can even have a cheeseburger or pizza as long as you use lean beef and low-fat cheese," said Dr. Frederick Stare, author of Adventures in Nutrition.

3 Eat slowly, deliberately chewing each mouthful. It takes time for the body to feel full and for hunger to cease. This gives your body that time.

4 Drink at least eight 8-ounce glasses of water each day to help curb hunger.

5 On your off-diet days, eat a large salad before your main meal, without dressing or with lemon juice, vinegar or a low-calorie dressing.

"Salads help fill you up at a relatively low calorie cost," said Dr. Stare. "So you'll be satisfied with smaller amounts of the main entree."

6 Exercise regularly. "Start out slowly with something mild, like 20-minute walks or bicycle rides," said Dr. Stare.

"Gradually work up to about an hour of exercise four to six days a week."

He added: "As with any diet plan, check with your physician before you start.

"Take a daily multiple vitamin and mineral supplement to ensure that you get all the nutrients you need.

"You're guaranteed to lose up to two pounds a week on this diet. And after you've lost the weight you want and don't need to continue on a weight-loss program, you can follow the basic guidelines of the diet to keep the weight off, stay fit — and feel great!"

REGULAR EXERCISE like bike riding will help keep you fit

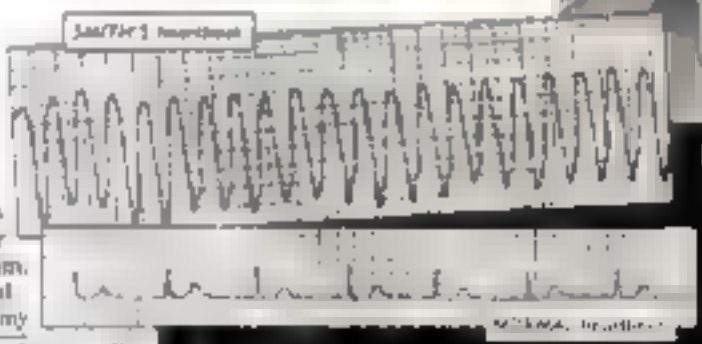
Ticker sounds like buzz saw — but he's healthy as a horse!

Man's heart beats a whopping 400 times per minute



That's an amazing 6.6 times every second!

By PAT WELLS Weekly World News

GISBORNE, New Zealand – Accountant Aston Smith has a perfectly healthy heart – yet it beats an incredible 400 times a minute!

Doctors can't explain why his ticker is revved up to super speed. Smith, 41, says that to him, the rapid heartbeat seems normal.

"I've had all sorts of tests run on my heart, and they say I'm in excellent shape," said the father of two. "It's been buzzing along like this for almost 15 years now and I feel just fine.

"The only inconvenience is that it sounds like an electric blender. My wife complains she can't sleep at night — she has to use a separate bedroom."

Smith's bizarre heart condition developed suddenly in 1982 after a hard game of tennis, according to interviews with the patient and his doctors. His heart, racing from the physical stress of the game, which ordinarily never returned to a normal rate of 75 beats per minute.

Instead, the man's heart has taken an astounding 400 beats per minute — 6.6 beats a second — permanently. "At first I was terrified," recalled Smith in an interview with New Zealand's Health magazine. "I thought I was dying. I'd hear this [illegible] every time I went to bed, every time I woke up, no matter what I was doing, when I slept, while I was eating, while I worked. I went to dozens of doctors and had every kind of test [illegible] but no one could explain what was going on. But they did find out that I was in perfect health, and that my heartbeat isn't hurting me."

Smith says he has had to make some adjustments since his change. "I don't exercise because during a physical workout his heart rate can soar to 480 beats a minute.

"As far as we know, Mr. Smith's heart beats at a rate never encountered in medical history," said the man's cardiologist Dr. Henry Todd.

"But his heart seems very efficient and he's otherwise normal."

KANSAS CITY MAN MEETS HIS DOUBLE IN A BOOKSTORE!

EMILE Magis got more than he expected when he moved to America last year.

By BARBARA SILVA

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Emile Magis and John Toler look like identical twins — but they aren't even remotely related!

After they bumped into each other in a bookstore in Kansas City, the men also learned that their lives are astonishingly similar in other ways, including the fact that both have:

- Blonde wives named Mary
- Four boys ages 7 to 14 and 23
- Jobs in the banking industry
- Stamp and coin collections
- Egg-shaped birthmarks on their left shoulders
- Vacation homes in the North Carolina mountains

To top it off, both men wear amateur boxers, drive 1965 MG convertibles and prefer Mexican food.

Emile and I are part the puzzles even though we aren't related and were actually born on different sides of the Atlantic," said Toler, who at 42 is two years older than his 40-year-old double.

Emile comes from Brussels, Belgium, and I'm a native of Kansas City," he explained.

"Neither of us was adopted, so we couldn't possibly be twins who were separated at birth. But look at us — we're as close as twins could be."

Magis and Toler were perfect strangers until July 1. That's when they came face to face while shopping for books in a Kansas City family but it was like looking into a mirror," said Magis, who moved from Brussels to Kansas City last year.

"I looked John straight in the eyes and said something like, 'I think I'm seeing things. He said 'I know this sounds crazy, but are you my double?'"

The men exchanged telephone numbers and agreed to stay in touch while they questioned relatives and checked family trees to see if they might possibly be related.

As it turned out, they didn't share a single common ancestor. Their apparent resemblance, Magis put it, is simply a fluke of nature.

"John and I have become friends since we met in the bookstore but the whole situation is still very weird."

ARIES
Mar. 21 - Apr. 19

Heads up, Aries! A decision you make this week will have a staggering impact — for better or worse — on the rest of your life. Stay calm and keep cool, and don't panic that both hard-to-please acquaintances whose advice you should ask.

Something from beneath the sea could bring happiness your way.

Someone close needs your help right now. Lend a hand.

Something silver could bring you very good luck.

TAURUS
Apr. 20 - May 20

Those voices you hear in your head this week aren't imaginary. Taurus, your subconscious is very powerful right now, speaking and giving you advice that could provide the key to fabulous riches. Listen to it all week — because then opportunity may never come again.

A stepmother is hurting you more than you know. Pay it no mind — now.

A new kind of love is just around the corner.

GEMINI
May 21 - June 20

Your creative juices are flowing, Gemini. Use this week to cook up the perfect time to pull off that stunt you've been dying to pull. Don't let anyone tell you it won't work because it will work — if you plan it through carefully and then go for it.

Someone close needs your help right now. Lend a hand.

Something silver could bring you very good luck.

CANCER
June 21 - July 22

Be right. Expect others to judge by deeds, not words. Do not let down a friend a little fun for a change. All the work and heavy duty worrying will pay off in time, but for the moment the stars are really favorable with friends and lovers, and let the tensions slip away.

A friend with shocking news has plans you don't.

If you dream about money, pay attention — it's a clue to lottery numbers.

LEO
July 23 - Aug. 22

Speed up. Even the most modest task could be the magical, all-the-rush-to-you. There's a million-dollar idea rummaging around in your head, but you've got to listen to it and put it to use before it goes forever. Don't let the chance of a lifetime slip through your fingers.

An invitation to a party could lead to big trouble. Use your head.

A very special and unexpected love relationship is on the horizon.

VIRGO
Aug. 23 - Sept. 22

A mistake you made long ago could come back to haunt you in a big way. When it does, hold your head high, admit you did wrong and apologize. You'll weather the storm and be a better person for it.

Someone in authority has his or her eye on you and is planning steps that could put you on the road to prosperity.

A loved one's good fortune could bring you great joy.

LIBRA
Sept. 23 - Oct. 23

The hope was the excitement. Libra because there's a hemisphere of an adventure in your future — and it could begin within the next week. This is going to be one of the relaxed and most exhilarating nights of your life — and when it ends you'll find yourself swimming for more.

Jealousy could keep an ugly head late in the week. Stop it dead.

A long-forgotten person could bring very good luck now.

SCORPIO
Oct. 24 - Nov. 21

Hold tight to your wallet this week, Scorpio, because there's a thief in the shadows. Nothing else is going to make it all the more important. Watch out for anyone who wears a little too friendly all of a sudden.

An unexpected lesson or love affair could make you happier than you've been in quite some time.

A special person holds the key to hope and success.

SAGITTARIUS
Nov. 22 - Dec. 21

Keep your nose to the grindstone this week, friend, and great things can happen for you. A little extra effort could set you on the road to prosperity and success beyond your wildest dreams. Buckle up your work boots, strap on your hard hat and go for it.

Look to the sky. There's something there that could bring you joy.

A child needs your help in the worst way. Be there to give it.

CAPRICORN
Dec. 22 - Jan. 19

Wake up, Capricorn — there's no time to let your dreams die. It's time to dust them off, bite the bullet and do what it takes to make them come true. The stars are on your side.

A romantic interlude — and possibly much more — is yours for the asking. Just make sure it doesn't come with too high a price tag.

If you gamble, keep numbers 14 and 29 in mind.

AQUARIUS
Jan. 20 - Feb. 18

Others that seek the attention, material security and convictions this week but stick to your guns. No one understands your people like you do, and some very good things are coming your way.

Your personal charm is at an all-time high and an attractive stranger is eyeing you with more than a handshake in mind.

It's time to make peace with an old enemy.

PISCES
Feb. 19 - Mar. 20

A goal that's eluded you for a good, long time is within your reach now. Take advantage of this chance to improve your life immensely.

You thought it was funny at the time, but a practical joke you played on someone in years past could backfire on you in a big way now.

A dream of sunshine and gardens could hold the key to a brighter future. Try to translate it when it comes again.

Hapless homeowner rides lawnmower over 200-foot cliff!

PORT ANGELES, Wash. — Homeowner Ken Campbell accidentally rode his power mower off the side of a cliff and fell 200 feet to his death.

Campbell, 53, was mowing the lawn of his vacation home east of here when he turned sharply, trying to avoid going over the side of the cliff.

But the mower locked in high gear and Campbell tumbled 200 feet down a sandstone bluff to the rocky beach below, sheriff's deputies said.

DOG SURVIVES 18 HOURS IN FREEZER!

LODI, Calif. — Prince the pooch miraculously awakened after being locked in a dog pound freezer for 18 hours.

The dog had lapsed into a coma after being struck by a car. When he didn't wake up, the distraught owner took him to the pound for disposal.

Pound manager Earl Monroe was stunned when he opened the freezer 18 hours later, and the dog walked out. Monroe said he hadn't seen anything like it in 29 years on the job.

This couple traded their girls

By SAMMY LEWIS
Weekly World News

ANTWERP, Belgium — Paul and Maria Gillon swapped their daughters for a neighbor's sons in one of the strangest adoption cases on record.

Even more amazing, the kiddie switch was made with the blessing of government officials who concluded that the trade was in the best interests of both families.

"Adoptions are very serious and this one was certainly no exception," Roger Franck, of the Children's Welfare Office, told newsmen.

"But after reviewing the situation we decided that the trade was both appropriate and beneficial. The children are happy. The parents are happy.

"You can't ask for more than that, now can you?"

The Gillons' decision to swap children with single parent Patricia Mouami wasn't made in haste.

The families live three houses apart and had known each other for two years before Mrs. Gillon half-jokingly mentioned a trade and Mrs. Mouami said: "I might take you up on that."

"Paul and I always wanted boys and Patricia wanted girls so the trade was a natural," said Mrs. Gillon. "We discussed it with the children and they were all for it.

"At that point we decided: 'Why not?' "

The Gillons and Mrs. Mouami told authorities of their intention to trade children in July. Adoption papers were drawn up after the required investigation and the families signed them in late September. Now Mrs. Mouami's sons Bobby, 6, and Carl, 2, are living with the Gillons. "We still have visitation rights with our natural children so we not only get our cake — we get to eat it, too," Mrs. Mosami said.

Mrs. Gillen added: "My husband and I are thrilled with the trade and we're going to do everything in our power to give the boys a good life with us.

"That's not to say we'll forget the girls. We've got enough love for them, too."

Oddly enough, the child swap is not without precedent. In 1977 two German families traded children after a bitter and lengthy legal battle with the government.

Bizarre adoptions have made everybody happy!

Bizarre attack sends panic-stricken residents running for cover!

TOWN FIREBOMBED BY UFO!

CHARRED remains of pieces of flaming metal dropped by the UFO

Over 100 flaming metal objects dropped in 5-minute bombardment!

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — Terror-stricken residents of a small resort community here are still in a state of shock after a nighttime attack by an oval-shaped UFO that bombarded them with flaming metal objects.

"I thought the world was coming to an end," said Frances Williams, an American retiree who has lived here since 1995. "It was the most frightening experience of my life.

"My knees are still shaking."

Mrs. Williams was getting ready for bed at about 10:30 p.m. when the sky turned a bright yellow outside her home in a suburban neighborhood of American ex-patriots southeast of San Jose.

"I rushed to the window and looked outside," she said. "About 100 feet in the air was a weird-looking thing surrounded by what appeared to be a bluish-green glow."

The UFO was 50 to 60 feet wide with no noticeable windows or doors, she said.

"It was hovering there making a low humming sound. Most of the neighbors were standing in their yards staring up at the thing," she said.

Seconds later the UFO unleashed a barrage of flaming metal objects at least three feet long and terrified townsfolk ran for cover.

"One landed on the roof of my house and another one slammed the thing picked our neighbor's head to bomb," said Mrs. Williams.

"Was it really an attack from outer space or was it an accident? I guess we'll never know."

Fred Glidden, a retired Detroit auto worker who lives across the street from Mrs. Williams.

The small-city scientific fortune hunters visited only five times, mostly for the scared residents estimate more than 100 alien fireballs scorched their tiny neighborhood during that time.

Then just as quickly as the UFO appeared, it vanished toward space with ominous speed.

Fortunately, no one was injured in the bizarre attack, and there was only minor damage to the roofs of two homes and three garages.

At least a handful of the flaming objects burned themselves out and the salvaged pieces were turned over to local authorities.

"They are definitely made out of some kind of metal, but not of a substance found on this planet," said a government spokesman.

"They look like lava chunks."

FETCH-HAPPY MUTT SWIPES 149 NEWSPAPERS!

TAMPA, Fla. — Dog owner Dick Stelphen told his pet Rottweiler to go fetch the morning paper and the confused canine came back with 149 of them!

The dim-witted mutt scoured the neighborhood grabbing every newspaper he could clamp his teeth on. He even snatched one right out of a woman's hand.

"I couldn't believe Spike would fetch everyone's paper," red-faced Stelphen told a reporter for a weekly paper near Tampa. "Some of my neighbors were ready to lynch me when they found out."

By JUNE SAWYER
Weekly World News

A stunned Stelphen said he opened the front door shortly after 6 a.m. and told Spike to go get the paper which was lying on the lawn near the front sidewalk.

"He brought it right to me and I went inside to drink my coffee. Two hours later an angry woman in a bathrobe knocked on my front door.

"Piles of rolled up morning papers filled the front porch and the steps leading to it. One of them belonged to the lady who knocked on my door."

She demanded — in no uncertain terms — that Stelphen exercise a bit more control over his pet-loving pooch.

Sneaky Spike apparently had roamed the neighborhood for blocks in every direction, swiping papers and bringing them back to his master.

Stelphen and his wife Anne returned as many of the papers as possible, but didn't know who subscribed and who didn't.

A spokesman for one of the area's daily newspapers said their circulation department's phones "rang off the hook" for more than an hour as irate customers called about their missing morning paper.

"We had a truck out delivering papers to those customers when we ran into Stelphen and his wife.

"They told us what had happened," said the spokesman.

GAL CHEWS SAME PIECE OF GUM — FOR 37 YEARS!

MARVEL Lasky proudly displays piece of bubble gum she's been chewing for a whopping 37 years!

By JASON JONES / Weekly World News

DENVER, Colo. — Harriet Lasky put a wad of bubble gum into her mouth when she was 7 years old — and she's been chewing that same piece of gum for 37 straight years.

"It's as tasty and chewy as the day I bought it. I plan to chew it till the day I die," she told a newspaper reporter.

Harriet bought the bubble gum "at a five and dime store for a penny on Jan. 13, 1960."

"I didn't plan on chewing this same piece of gum for ever. It just happened that way.

"Now I guess I'm just too old to change my ways," she said.

The 44-year-old housewife and mother of two was in the second grade when she bought a few school supplies and the package of gum. "Nobody could blow a bigger bubble than me," she said. As the years passed, preserving the wad of gum each night became as normal as brushing her teeth. She carefully kept it in a glass of fresh water on a table beside her bed.

"Once or twice through the years I spilled the glass, but it was easy to wash off my precious gum," she said.

The wad of gum is well known among her neighbors.

"Every time one of them drops by I have to blow a bubble just to prove the gum hasn't lost its zip," she said.

The gum chewing mom plans to contact the Guinness Book of Records.

"It's gotta be a record," she says.

A spokesman for the company that made the bubble gum was amazed someone has actually chewed the same wad for that length of time.

"That's certainly a first," said the firm's public relations director. "If she has been chewing one piece for 37 years, it doesn't seem like she'll ever buy another piece. I'm glad most of our customers are less frugal with their gum."

Her understanding husband of 27 years chewed gum regularly, too, until he got dentures five years ago.

"Her chewing doesn't bother me. She's kind of a hyper person and the gum has a calming effect," he said.

GENOA, Italy — If inventor Sergio Calarco gets his way, every car in the world will come equipped with ejection seats by the year 2001!

Sergio Calarco

By Jan SHANNON
Weekly World News

"It's true," declared Calarco. "Ejection seats have so many practical uses that we can no longer afford to be without them. To tell the truth, they'll save thousands of lives.

"If your car stalled on a train track, you could blow yourself to safety before the locomotive hit. If a robber or rapist pumped through a door at a traffic light, you could send yourself — or him — sailing or movies without bothering to stop. Ejection seats really are the wave of the future. And the uses are only limited by your imagination."

Ejection seats have been around for years but the cost — which used to run $10,000 per unit — kept manufacturers from putting them into their cars.

Calarco says that's going to change because he has developed an ejector mechturned to ejected passengers will be thrown clear of the car.

"Reliability used to be a problem but not anymore," said Calarco. "My ejection seat works beautifully and auto manufacturers all over the world couldn't agree more.

"Their goal is to have ejection seats in selected sports and luxury cars by 1999. By 2000 or 2001, they should be available as options on all but the cheapest product lines."

But not everyone is so keen on the idea. As one automotive writer put it: "Calarco can blast out of his car as often as he likes, but Raging reptile mauls two — and kills one!

By BEATRICE DEXTER Weekly World News

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The horrifying photo at right was snapped seconds before a killer crocodile shook off his restraints and attacked three handlers, badly mauling two men and tearing the third to shreds!

Authorities say the 12 foot-long, 720-pound croc slipped his bonds as Everett Kaneller, Carl Milton and Howard James were moving him into the crocodile pit. The angry reptile turned on the men in a flash — and savaged them as they desperately tried to escape through the cage door.

"It was absolutely horrible," says photographer Winston Plummer, who dropped his camera and ran to the assistance of the stricken men. "They couldn't get out of there. The animal was all over them, slashing them with its teeth and raking them with its clawed feet.

"By the time we finally opened the door and got everybody out, it was too late for Carl Milton. He was torn to pieces. He wasn't even breathing by the time that croc was finished with him."

Milton, 37, was pronounced dead at the scene and James, 31, and Spindler, 29, were hospitalized in serious condition. Doctors say both will require extensive surgery.

According to eye witnesses, the tragic attack occurred when three employees of a traveling animal fair were moving a 6-foot crocodile from a truck into his exhibition pit. The crocodile had been tranquilized and bound with hemp cords, but the drugs were all gone by the time the three handlers were finished with their task and the animal began to tear free from his restraints.

"I was taking pictures when the croc suddenly broke free of the cages and went berserk," newspaper photographer Plummer recalled. "The guys scrambled toward the door, but the croc was enraged and was right on them in a second, biting and tearing at them. They were trapped up against the bars of the cage.

"I rushed to help, got the door open and began pulling those fellows out of there. But by the time we got to Milton, he was already dead."

The 15-year-old crocodile was immobilized with a tranquilizer gun and destroyed following the frightening attack. A spokesman for South African Animal Exhibitions, which owns the reptile,

ROAD-RUNNING BIRD DRAG RACES TRAFFIC!

By JOE BERGER / Weekly World News

NEWCHAPEL, England — Bewildered motorist Suzanne Turner got the shock of her life when she glanced out her car window and found herself in a 60 m.p.h. drag race — with a speeding emu!

Startled Suzanne did a double take as the fleet-footed bird dashed past her on the highway like she was standing still. Suddenly tires were squealing and screeching up and down the busy expressway as other dumb founded drivers came face to face with the spindly-legged creature from the Australian outback.

"Nobody could believe what they were seeing," flabbergasted Suzanne, 28, told reporters. "That goofy bird looked right through my window with his beady little eyes like he was challenging me to a race. Then he just darted on past leaving me in the dust. They say those things can run real close to 60 m.p.h. — and now I believe it."

The astonished airline stewardess and her fellow motorists didn't know it, but the elusive emu had leaped an eight-foot fence and escaped from a farm where it was kept as a pet.

"I didn't have a clue what was going on," Suzanne recalled. "I'd just gotten off a long flight, and when I saw that thing I thought I'd gone batty from exhaustion."

The hearty-eyed lady dashed to a roadside phone and told police: "You're not going to believe this, but I've just seen this huge bird running along the highway."

Traffic cops and other big bird hunters spent seven hours chasing the feathered fugitive through nearby fields and woods before five men brought it down with a fast ball tackle and dragged the struggling bird with a rope.

"He was not a very happy bird when they brought him in," said the lucky critter's owner Sue Wilson.

JUNK FOOD Family! (from left) Frank, Fronnie and Connie McKintry chow down on a light, high-glazed dessert

By RACHEL LUX

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Frannie McKintry serves her family nothing but junk food — and they're healthy as horses!

The mother of two turns fruits and veggies from her table, giving her family only high-cal, low-nutrition foods like potato chips, cookies and candy bars. She swears it makes them healthier, smarter and more energetic than folks who eat supposedly healthful foods.

"I don't care what the experts say. I've seen the benefits of junk food with my own eyes," says the slender divorcee. As she proudly serves her kids bowls of M&Ms for breakfast.

"My son is a super athlete and my daughter Connie doesn't have pimples anymore. Everybody asks me how I keep them so healthy. It's pure food. I tell them 'Nothing but junk food.'"

The part-time secretary says she used to worry about preparing only "healthy" meals with a variety of foods from the four food groups. But while her family was eating low fat meals of grains, dairy products, fruits, vegetables and meat, they were suffering from a host of horrible ailments.

"My 13-year-old son Frank had halitosis, dandruff, decaying teeth, constant colds, allergies and terrible gas attacks," Mrs. McKintry recalls. "My daughter had digestive troubles, low energy, mood swings and terrible acne even though she was only 13. And I was tense all the time and had awful headaches."

Mrs. McKintry says she was fed up so had that she lost enthusiasm for cooking and began feeding her family jelly beans, cookies, Cheetos and other junk snacks.

Incredibly, her family's health problems vanished. Within months her kids were looking great with shiny hair, clear skin and no sick days. Frank took up baseball and football. Connie won a Little Miss Teenager contest and her popularity with the guys soared.

"He wanted to know how we had it."

Mrs. McKintry believes we've all been sold a bill of goods by the health food industry.

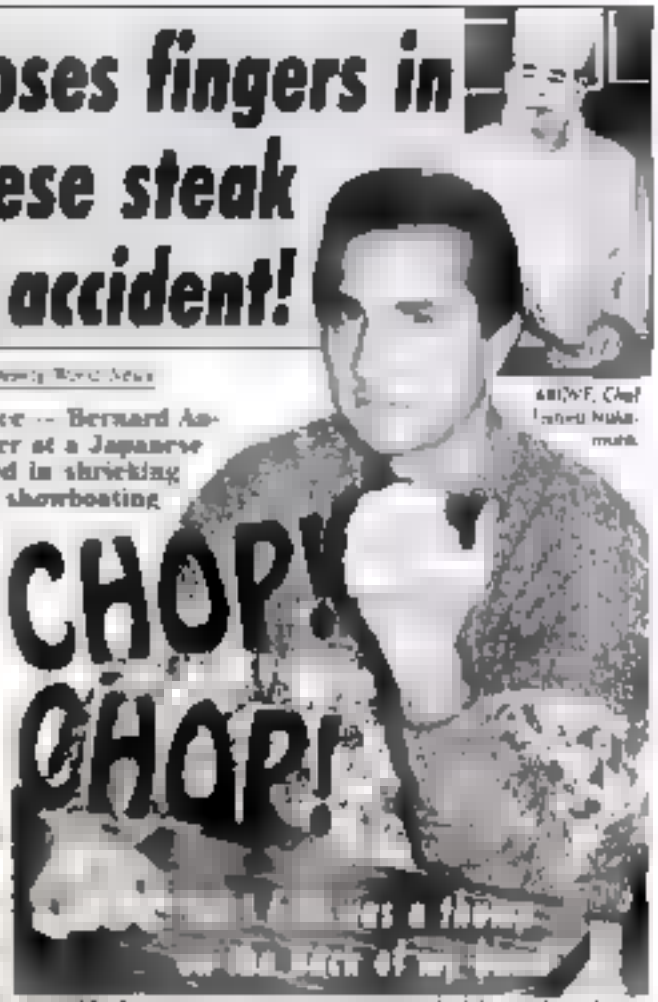
Man loses fingers in Japanese steak house accident!



ABOVE: Chef Isamu Nakamura.

KELLY TURNER Weekly World News

RENNES, France — Bernard Aubrey's fancy dinner at a Japanese steak house ended in shrieking horror — when a showboating chef accidentally chopped off the poor guy's fingers with a whirling slashing knife blade!

The gruesome mishap unfolded as unsuspecting Bernard Aubrey, dining at the grand opening of the Ichi Ban Steak House, the first restaurant of its kind in Rennes.

The 41-year-old grocery owner had never seen a Japanese steak house chef strut his stuff, and he got a pair of razor-sharp knives in his chest, slicing and quickly dicing the customer's meal.

CHOP! CHOP!

HAZARD: Bernard Aubrey was so mesmerized while watching Japanese Chef Nakamura chop up food that he didn't realize his fingers were sliced off until he saw them on his plate.

In his statement to police, Bernard said he moved in for a closer look — and inadvertently put his left hand down on the chef's chopping block.

"I was so mesmerized by the show that I put my hand down and leaned forward to see better," he recalled.

"I felt a thump on the back of my hand, but the chef was chopping meat and vegetables and flinging them around so fast I didn't realize four of my fingers were missing until I saw them on my plate, covered with teriyaki sauce.

"That's when I let out a scream and almost passed out."

The bloody customer said his fingers were rushed to a hospital, but attempts to reattach them failed — because Rogers had been rare instead of well done, he might have saved them," Bernard joked bravely.

The [illegible] chef has consulted a lawyer and says he will sue the restaurant and its knife-juggling chef. But [illegible] Nakamura insists he's not to blame. "I'm sorry about the accident but it was his fault, not mine," Chef Ichiro said. "Any idiot knows that when knives are flying, you don't want to get too close to the action."

Cancer patient turns himself into human torch while fighting his cigar!

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Throat cancer patient Abraham Manley, 64, was trying to light a cigar when he set the gauze bandages around his throat on fire — and burned to a crisp!

Investigators said Manley, confined to a hospital bed in his kitchen, ignited strips of gauze on the burner of his stove and was trying to light his cigar with the [illegible] pajamas ablaze. "He was a walking torch when I woke up," said his sister, Katie Brown.

"That sight will stay with me the rest of my life."

8 LIFESAVING TIPS THAT CAN SAVE YOUR BUTT!

You can survive almost any emergency if you keep your wits about you, says Anthony Greenbank, author of The Survival Handbook.

He's gathered thousands of suggestions on what to do in a variety of emergency situations and has lifesaving tips that may come in handy some day.

Here are some of his more fascinating ideas on how you can save your hide from every hazard.

When car brakes fail. Downshift and use the emergency brake. If it doesn't work, drive onto the shoulder. If you can't get off the road, brush the car against walls, banks or buildings to slow it.

If a speeding driver is at pedestrian crossing, bring yourself onto the hood, trying to grab the wipers.

Eating repulsive foods for survival. Shut your eyes and pinch your nose. Then take a big bite and chew. This method works well enough to make a raw potato taste like a Golden Delicious apple.

Savage dog attack. Drop the beast or the snout or stab your arm in the back of its jaws.

If it doesn't work, clinch its back between your crossed legs. If you go down with it, squeeze as hard as you can.

Keeping your money safe from pickpockets and purse snatchers. The best place for men to keep their money is on the car from [illegible] pocket.

TUCK your purse under your arm so you are not an easy target for a purse snatcher.

Making life pre- server's out of checking. Wet checking will [illegible] enough air to keep you afloat for a while. For example, keeping the legs of trousers and sweeping up air before closing up the waist will provide a lifesaving flotation device.

If saving a child whose head is stuck between railings. Turn him upside down and slip his head out. He's stuck because the ears flatten as the head goes in but are pulled outward if the head is pulled backward.

Dying of thirst. Suck on something smooth and nonabsorbent like a [illegible] pit or pebble. Try to sweat as little as possible. Move slowly and in hot climates wear lots of loose-covering clothes to check evaporation.

Don't drink sea water, urine, alcohol, car battery water, salt, fluids, snow or ice. Look for fruit, plants or dew and set out containers

HITLER'S SECRET FOUND . . . living in America!

By ANN MUGNEY

Adolf Hitler's son lived in fear and obscurity for 65 years, but now he's decided to come out of hiding — and let his true identity be known!

And while Indianapolis retiree Werner Schmidt is almost certainly risking his life by going public, he plans to tell the whole gripping story in a blockbuster new book, I Am Hitler's Son, which should be available across the country next fall.

"I'm not proud of my father or the things that he stood for, but there comes a time when a man must accept his ancestry, heritage and fate," declared the white-haired, grandfatherly Schmidt.

"I'm older now. I'm not in the best of health. And I'm tired of living a lie."

Other men have called themselves sons of Hitler but Schmidt, who never married, is the first to produce [illegible] to support his claim.

Rare and previously unpublished photographs clearly place Hitler, Schmidt and Schmidt's mother Geli Raubal together in the 1930s and early 1940s.

He also has mementos that were given to him by the Führer. And his recollections of Hitler are so anecdotal and detailed that he couldn't possibly have gleaned them from books or documentaries, experts have confirmed.

Schmidt says he was born in Berlin [illegible] to Raubal and Hitler, and remained under the Führer's protection until she shot herself to death in 1931.

"Geli Raubal and Hitler had a well-documented relationship and I've got dozens of snapshots of them in my scrapbooks," said Schmidt. "I was a baby when she committed suicide, of course, so I don't remember much about that. I was reared by relatives in Germany and Austria.

"I did not know they were the only people other than me who knew that Hitler was my dad."

Schmidt says Hitler visited him [illegible] times a year while he was growing up and treated the child well from "Father."

"When I was 11, I asked him why our names were different and he said it was too dangerous for me to be associated with [illegible] because [illegible] reporters would ask me questions. You are not sad. You will follow in my footsteps.

"And when the time comes, I will give you everything, including the world.

"He told me that in 1945," Schmidt continued. "I never saw my father again."

Schmidt refused to identify the woman who reared him because he doesn't want them to suffer for their role in hiding Hitler's son.

He did say that he came to the United States in 1951 and became a citizen after he graduated from a major university with an engineering degree in 1955. He retired two years ago so he might work on his book.

Birth certificates don't necessarily prove identity because they are so easy to fake. For the record, Schmidt's literature says that he was named Werner Hermann Schmidt at birth but identifies his parents only as [illegible].

Der Führer's only child reveals shocking secrets about the infamous WW2 Nazi leader!

RARE PHOTOGRAPHS show proud papa

Adolf Hitler was a cruel dictator but Werner Schmidt says he was a kind and loving father — the kind of man that any kid would be proud to call "dad."

"The Hitler that I knew wasn't a madman — he was kind and compassionate, and very much interested in me," said Schmidt.

"He used to love when the children called for it, of course, and there were times when I flew into [illegible] when he disagreed with his [illegible].

"But he didn't set goals that I couldn't reach or make unreasonable demands. As long as he knew I was giving 100 percent, he was [illegible] and he loved me."

[illegible] year, but in those 100 or so days before the Führer reportedly killed himself in a Berlin bunker in 1945, Schmidt got to know him intimately.

Here are some of the many [illegible] revelations that will be included in the new book:

● Hitler loved sweets and often ate sugar right out of the bowl. He could go through a two-pound box of chocolates in one afternoon and refused to share with anyone — including his own son.

● Children's books — and Schmidt's own books about Hitler's exploits and before "he died not knowing what the world is all about."

● Eyebrow-knotted Führer and his equally hostile pet dog were the best of friends. His teeth were rotten and his breath was, to Schmidt's mouth, "very, very bad."

● Despite [illegible] Hitler and he often held his head in pride. Schmidt says his [illegible] moments, at least for a while, was [illegible]. The Führer actually took it out and stuck it on his forehead while showing around during a visit in 1938.

Historian Hitler Buster has read Schmidt's book and is particularly interested in his recollections of Hitler.

"For the first time we are seeing Hitler through the eyes of a child — his only son — and the results are spectacular," said the Pennsylvania-based expert.

KOOKY COUNTRY CURES THAT REALLY WORK!

Docs used hornet's nest, moonshine and even human pee as tried-and-true old-time home cures!

By KELLY TURNER

In "the good old days," folks in the country couldn't run to the doctor every time they felt a tad poorly. Instead, they used a tried-and-true, homegrown remedy — like cow manure, snake oil or a jigger of ordinary kerosene!

Some of the remedies popular at the turn of the century were straightforward — cod liver oil, camphor a hot bowl of chicken soup.

But often as not, they were downright bizarre — spider webs, dirty socks and sheep urine.

And oftentimes, they actually worked!

Here are just a few of those old-time home cures that author Elizabeth Janos has compiled in her informative book "Country Folk Med icine." Don't try them without checking with your doctor.

B FOR A COLD: Mix and drink two shots of moonshine, one teaspoon of ginger, a tablespoon of sugar and hot water. This will make you sweat real good, but watch out — the stuff "burns like hell going down!"

B FOR TOOTHACHES: Take the gray wall of a hornet's nest, soak it in vinegar. Put it on the cheek as a poultice.

B FOR PEELS: Rub on turpentine. "You'll run around the house screaming bloody murder, but you won't be bothered by piles again."

Miss Janos interviewed hundreds of elderly people who recalled some of the homespun medicines they were doctored with when they were young. "Back home we were so awful, they'd use a maggot.

For example:

"Father used to buy a big bottle of rattlesnake oil at the county fair," one old-timer said.

"It would cure most anything — toothache, earache, rheumatism, bronchitis. My dear mother even rubbed it on a corn once.

"It penetrated right through the shoe leather."

One elderly woman recalled the effective but disgusting treatment she once was subjected to when she had an earache.

"An Indian woman had me urinate in a pot. She told me to lie on my side and she filled my ear with the urine. The earache went away, but I cried all day because of the humiliation of having urine in my ear."

And then there's this mind-boggling method of ridding the body of a very unsavory visitor — a tapeworm!

"For tapeworms, starve it. Then hold some warm milk up to your nose and sniff deeply. The tapeworm will stick his head out of your nose to get the milk. Hold the milk farther away from him, thus drawing him out."

So much for medicine in "the good old days."

The fascination of shooting on a sport depends on whether you are on the right or wrong end of the gun.

KID SHOOTS MOM OVER POP!

Six-year-old wanted a soda — & she wouldn't give him one!

LILLE, France — Six-year-old Claude Alexis wanted a Coke and his mom wouldn't give him one — so he shot her!

Now the feisty first-grader is in a children's home and his mother is in the hospital recuperating from a stomach wound.

"He went into the bedroom, found his dad's hunting rifle, loaded it and went back in the kitchen where his mother was," said police spokesman Pierre Dumont. "She told her back to the boy and didn't see what he was doing. When she turned around to speak to him, he fired."

Prosecutor Nicolas Zil, in an unusual conference with a child present, said pandemonium broke out after the shooting. The boy's father, Gerard Alexis, ran from the house screaming bloody murder, but the boy's mother, Christine, remained calm.

She helped up and ran from the table. "I thought he'd gone to his room to pout," she stoically said. "When I was closing the shutters from the table, I heard a sound behind me and turned around — and there he was with the rifle pointed at me. I said, 'Claude, put that gun down right this minute!' but he just looked me right in the eye and pulled the trigger. Then, when he saw that I was injured he became very upset. He kept saying, 'Mommy, I'm sorry, I'm sorry.'"

Claude was taken to a police station where he was questioned for hours. But on September 3 they had an argument over a soft drink that escalated into violence, detectives said. The injured woman told Claude that when she was old enough to work and earn her own money she would buy him all the Coke he wanted.

EXPERTS WARN:

Jealousy rots your face!

Jealousy can age you, agree experts who offer some hints on how to stay younger longer by dealing with the green-eyed monster.

"Jealousy creates hell on your face," declared psychologist Dr. Elayne Kahn.

"The stress and tension it creates furrows your forehead and turns down your mouth. It can also lead to nervous gestures like pursing your lips or grinding your teeth, both of which give your mouth and jaw a hard look."

But "this can be overcome," noted psychiatrist Dr. Mark Rubinstein says. Here are his suggestions:

● Build self confidence by working for small achievements. If you become president of a civic organization and do a good job don't be afraid to put yourself on the line.

As your confidence grows your jealousy will diminish.

● Work on looking better. Watch your weight. Physical attractiveness can increase self confidence.

● Learn skills you can be proud of. Jealousy is inevitable and if you develop your talents you will feel more secure.

Praise from others can make you look more youthful as your eyes sparkle and you stand up straighter.

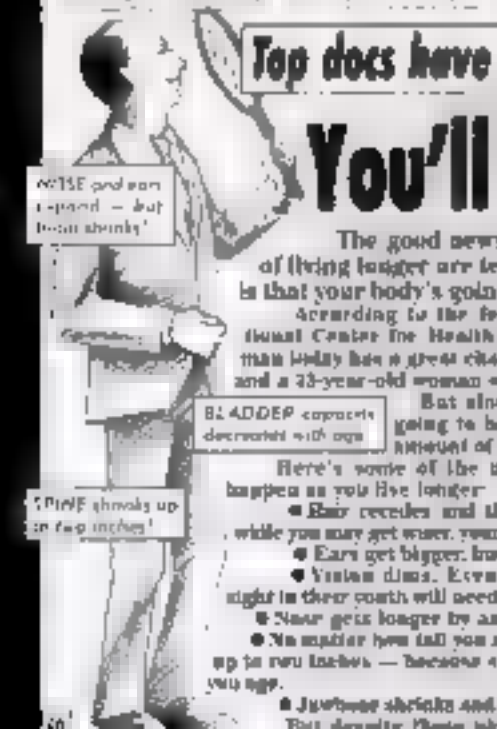
Dr. Kahn added these helpful hints:

● Scale down your goals. Accept the fact that no one has everything. You simply are not going to be rich, beautiful and get hotly pursued. Forget about what you see in TV — [illegible]

● Realize that others may be jealous of you. You might be so stuck on what you don't have that you forget others may envy what you do have.

● Speak out about your jealousies. Tell your husband you're a tramp but jealous of the time he spends with his secretary. He may [illegible]

Or tell your friend you're jealous because she seems [illegible] have sucked out so well [illegible] her. She may tell you things that show how lucky you are.



Top docs have good news and bad news:

You'll live longer — but you'll fall apart!

The good news is that your chances of living longer are terrific — the bad news is that your body's going to be falling apart.

According to the federal government's National Center for Health Statistics, a 15-year-old man today has a great chance of living until he's 71 and a 25-year-old woman of making it to 80.

But along the way, your body's going to be showing a tremendous amount of wear and tear.

Here's some of the unappealing things that happen as you live longer:

● Hair recedes and the shaft gets thicker. And while you may get wiser, your brain definitely shrinks.

● Ears get bigger, but your hearing decreases.

● Vision dims. Even those with perfect eyesight in their youth will need glasses to read by age 50.

● Nose gets longer by an inch.

● No matter how tall you are — you'll get shorter by up to two inches — because spinal discs deteriorate as you age.

● Jawbone shrinks and the skin on your face sags.

But despite these physical changes and failures, there's no reason why you shouldn't be a healthy, functioning person with plenty of energy when you're 75.

Experts agree that the best way to age gracefully is to follow these health-giving tips.

● Eat low-fat foods and lots of whole-grain cereals, fresh vegetables and fruits.

● Get plenty of regular exercise.

● Cut down on salt-cured, nitrite-cured or smoked meats and foods.

● Quit smoking.

The 715-pound loverboy

'He's a ton of fun,' say wife — and girlfriend!

TIRLEMONT, Belgium — He's 715 quivering pounds of flabby lard and once worked as a circus freak but incredibly, Willy is so irresistible to women that he has a wife, a mistress and dozens of girls chasing him!

"I've got one piece of advice for all blubbery guys. Forget your fat and smile and the women will come running," declares Willy, who goes by only his first name.

And his beautiful mistress, Chantal, said: "He's the most fantastic man in the world. I don't care that he looks like the back end of a bus and weighs as much as a horse.

"It might be thought of as repulsive to most people — but I think he's wonderful." To the Willy enthusiast is beautiful.

His wife Josanne added: "He's an example to fat men all over the world.

"It's not true that women don't like flabby guys — they do the greatest. It's their personality what is inside them that counts."

Amazingly, it took 2 Willy — who has children by both his wife and mistress — says he's had a devastating effect on women all his life.

Blind man regains sight & dumps wife

THIS 1995 PHOTO was taken during happier times for Gerda Fischer, who looked after her blind hubby's every need.

By JOE BERGER / Weekly World News

LINZ, Austria — Gentle Gerda Fischer waited on her blind hubby Karl like a slave for 20 backbreaking years, bringing light and love into his otherwise bleak and lonely world.

Then a freak accident miraculously restored Karl's sight, and the ungrateful cad gave Gerda the boot — for being too ugly.

"My Lord, I never dreamed she was such a dog!" the heartless hubby told reporters as he filed his petition for divorce.

"She's a sweet woman, and she was a wonderful wife while I was blind and didn't have to look at her. But now that I can see, I can't stand the thought of waking up next to someone who looks like her every morning.

HEARTLESS HUBBY "I never dreamed she was such a dog!"

. . . for being too ugly!

Now I only want beautiful people around me."

Goodhearted Gerda, 45, was a nurse doing volunteer work at a recreation center for the handicapped when she met her mate-to-be and fell in love back in 1977.

"I remember the first time I saw Karl, thinking what a handsome man he was," the heartsick missus told a divorce court. "He had been totally blind since he was a little boy, and he seemed so helpless and vulnerable.

"I fell head over heels for him and after a few weeks, we ran off and got married."

Adoring Gerda gave up her career in visit on her helpless hubby hand and foot. Together they operated a tiny ice cream shop down the street from their home.

"That woman treated Karl like a god," fumed Gerda's jilted ex-victim. "She did everything for him. She even cut his food up for him. I thought that was what a wife was supposed to do.

But Gerda's world turned topsy-turvy the day a fan toppled off a shelf in the ice cream store and clobbered her husband on the head.

"I was dazed, but when I got my senses back, I realized I had an extra one — I could see!" recalled creepy Karl, 47.

"Then I turned around and saw Gerda and I thought, 'My God, she's awful. How am I going to get out of this?'"

"The next day I told her I was leaving."

Jilted Gerda granted her [illegible] lady. "I just hope Karl finds a woman who's good enough for him now that he can see."

ISLAMORADA, Fla. — A gigantic [illegible] turtle is haunting the waters of the Florida Keys — attacking and sexually assaulting terrified scuba divers!

The sex-crazed turtle, estimated at a whopping 300 pounds, has assaulted three men in the last 10 days, [illegible] say. They believe it is the same turtle that [illegible] three other divers [illegible] in 1988.

"This is every bit as frightening as Jaws," said a Florida Marine Patrol officer. "All three of these divers feared for their lives.

"First, they were viciously attacked and second, they were pursued by the sea floor where they easily could have drowned.

"Apparently, this creature is back in our waters again, just waiting for unsuspecting men to venture into his neighborhood."

One of the sea creature's victims was tourist Bruce Belle of Charlotte, N.C., who was diving in search of fish for his saltwater aquarium when he noticed a huge shadow hurling above him.

Suddenly, the huge turtle grabbed him and pushed him toward the bottom then tried to mate with him.

"The damn thing tried to rape me," Belle, 28, told the NEWS.

"I don't know if he was confused or just wanted sex with the first thing he saw."

Belle broke free but found he was still in trouble.

"The damn thing grabbed me again, this time by my flippers, and tried to take me down again," he said.

Brian Belle

"He was definitely trying to have sex with me. And I was terrified. I was afraid I couldn't get away because he was so strong and huge."

Belle believes the strength he gained as a weightlifter and his 230-pound frame allowed him to break free.

"A smaller person would have been drowned or raped," he said.

Another diver wasn't as lucky. He was attacked in shallow water and raped.

"The guy doesn't want his name released because he is embarrassed," the marine officer said.

"And who can blame him? Nobody wants to be famous for having been seduced by a turtle."

A third diver fought his way to freedom — but not without several scrapes and bruises — after a nighttime dive.

The unidentified man was treated at a local hospital and left without talking to officers investigating the attacks.

Officials have posted signs in prominent locations throughout the Keys warning swimmers and divers to beware of the sex-mad creature.

"This thing is frightening people," the marine officer said.

"Nobody wants to put a toe in the water. If we don't catch him, it's just a matter of time before he drowns someone."

HOW TO STEAL ANOTHER WOMAN'S MAN!

By JUNE SAWYER / Weekly World News

NEW YORK — An expert in romance has some shocking advice for single gals in search of a good man: Just steal one from another woman!

ROMANCE EXPERT Shaydie Sori teaches a course on stealing men.

WEEKLY WORLD NEWS

FOR GALS ONLY!

If the good men are already taken, the only answer is to take 'em back, says Shaydie Sori, who teaches a course in manhunting to scores of eager ladies in New York City.

"We all know there's a shortage of men," says Shaydie, a stunning brunette. "And the best guys are taken.

"If you're going to get what you want, you have to be ruthless. All's fair in love and war. In my course you learn how to play the games that mom never taught you."

Here are sexy Shaydie's tips on how to steal another woman's man:

● Bump into him accidentally. Once you have the right guy in your sights, show up at places where you know he'll be. But make him think it's just a lucky coincidence.

● Make a dazzling first impression. Act confident, even if you don't feel that way. Dress to kill.

● Lie. Don't let the truth get in the way of your goal — stealing that man. Tell him anything to get him to dump his wife or girlfriend.

● Make him smile. Men want to forget their worries. Keep him happy and you'll keep him.

● Listen. Guys love to talk about themselves. Make him feel his every word fascinates you.

● Know his friends. With the people close to him on your side, chances are good you'll have HIM at your side.

● Pay your own way. Men don't want to be seen as just a gravy train.

They love a woman who is willing to open up her pocketbook and pay for half of everything.

● Make him jealous. Date other men and tell him about it. If you don't have extra beaus, he. Men want a gal that other men want. Don't brag about sex with others — that's hard on a guy's ego.

● Talk cheap. Drive him wild with sexy words. Men love to have women to share sexy secrets with.

● Have sex till last. You want the anticipation to be so strong that he won't think twice about dumping his wife for the chance to dive between the sheets with you. Make sure he's hooked before you take the leap — then give him the best sex he's ever had.

If your boss is in bad humor, stay out of his way — because moods really are contagious, a top expert warns.

Feelings like anger, joy and irritability are "catching," according to Los Angeles psychiatrist Ronald Pedell. "They can spread just like any cold or flu, infecting all who come in close contact with them," said Pedell, author of the new book Contagious Emotions (Pocket Books). "Not only are spouses affected, but children, pets, wife, friends and co-workers as well," said the expert.

Middle-class parents are spoiling their kids rotten!

LOS ANGELES — A survey of upper middle-class southern California parents shows they're spoiling their kids rotten, of $15,235 in presents each year — and $154 every time a baby tooth falls out!

Sociologists who conducted the research say a combination of guilt and one-upmanship is causing the neurotic pampering.

"Parents feel guilty because they work moments or hours instead of days with their children," said researcher Ted Nichols. "And they also want to make sure their neighbors know they love their kids. So they buy them anything they want."

Here are some of the amazing things the survey revealed:

● On any given day, in upper middle-class school districts, at least 18 percent of the children will be wearing designer clothes costing more than $1,000.

● Couples with a combined annual income of $70,000 spend more than 21 percent of their yearly income on children's gifts.

● Parents playing the roll of "tooth fairy" take their kids teeth from under their pillow — and

TWILIGHT ZONE ROCKS

Woman orders item from an old 1936 newspaper ... AND IT ARRIVES!

CIRCLES show old newspaper ad that initially ordered and Donaldson from as a fork. Three weeks later, box order arrived! Experts theorize her mailed request went back in time through a time warp

BALTIMORE, Md.— Rosalie Bodnaruk couldn't believe her eyes when the silver serving set that she jokingly ordered from a 51-year-old newspaper ad arrived at her doorstep — in a box postmarked 1936!

Even stranger, the company she ordered the set from, Hearns of New York, went out of business in the 1950s.

"This is like something out of The Twilight Zone," said the 36-year-old waitress. "I have reported to get anything I ordered [the silver] in a box."

"But it came to my doorstep and my post office does not know anything about it."

"When I told him what happened he looked at me like I was a nut."

The mind-numbing drama began when Mrs. Bodnaruk ran across a copy of the Nov. 8, 1936, edition of The New York Sunday News while sifting through boxes in her attic.

She spotted a Hearns ad for various baby items and silver services on page 18 and decided to order a few pieces. "Just to see how the company would respond."

"I jotted down what I wanted on a slip of paper. I didn't even send any money," said Mrs. Bodnaruk. "Sixteen or 17 days later the silver service arrived and the box it was in had a 1936 postmark."

"I tried to call Hearns to find out what was going on but the [New] York authorities couldn't explain how the woman got the package. I speculated that she might have ordered the service in 1936 and that it somehow got lost in the mail."

Mrs. Bodnaruk says that's not possible because she lived in New Jersey in 1936 and didn't move to Baltimore — where the package arrived — until 1987.

Experts on the paranormal conjectured by Weekly World News said the only possible explanation is that the woman's letter to Hearns had slipped through a time warp and the silver service was delivered the same way.

"The thing that really puzzles me is how many people were ultimately involved," said one researcher.

"The woman's letter was obviously handled by two or more postal workers from the past as well as company clerks, order-fillers and a shipping department."

"This is definitely a case for the textbooks!"

UFO SPHERES ARE FALLING FROM THE SKY!

IT CAME FROM OUTER SPACE Terry and Gerri Bura found a sphere in their Texas backyard

By BEATRICE DEXTER, Weekly World News

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Mysterious metallic spheres from outer space are raining down on our planet and baffled scientists from around the world say they are at a loss to explain the frightening phenomenon.

The shiny, 24-pound space balls have landed in backyards and farm fields from Argentina to Sweden over the past six-month period experts say. They are made of a strange brilliant metal-like substance and have been observed to move on their own.

To date, 133 of the spheres have been found world-wide, but scientists believe many more may be yet undiscovered. Attempts to crack open the dense metal-like balls or to X-ray them to see what's inside have failed because of the unique qualities of the spheres' outer shells.

"We have no idea where these things come from or why all of a sudden they are streaming in from outer space," said Dr. Tord Jorberg, head of Sweden's Space and Atmospheric Institute. "They continue to arrive almost daily now and their numbers appear to be increasing."

Only one of the space balls is known to have landed in the United States, where it wound up in a vegetable garden belonging to Gerri Bura of Texas. Bura found the sphere in her backyard after hearing a loud noise in the northern sky. The sphere and seem to arrive after dark, the scientist said.

"We believe that many of them may not be discovered because they land while people are sleeping. We observed that the spheres move and that if they are in the same area they will tend to roll toward each other. Twice now we have found balls of the spheres stuck up to half a dozen had gathered together."

In a special meeting on the strange spheres held last month at the Space and Atmospheric Institute a number of scientists expressed concern that the spheres may be alien spacecraft that contain an unknown and potentially dangerous — life-form.

'They are NOT of this Earth,' warns Dr. Tord Jorberg

They argue that the spheres should be destroyed, if they can be destroyed before some unknown danger to Earth arises out of them. But other experts argue that the spheres may be a form of communication from a friendly planet or simply a ball of rare and unusual metal.

"Several nations have conducted extensive studies on the spheres because there is some concern about them," Dr. Jorberg said.

RESEARCH REVEALS:

French folks stink to high heaven!

PARIS — If you believe the French are all a bunch of debonair hunks and sweet-scented sex kittens, think again. The truth is most French folks stink to high heaven!

That's the startling conclusion of researcher Jacques Dumont, who surveyed the hygiene habits of 1,000 French guys and gals — and learned that 36 percent of them change their underwear less than once a week.

The pollster also found that most French men and women bathe so seldom they use only two bars of soap a year.

"We are supposed to be a nation of lovers," Dumont said. "But instead, we are a nation of dirt lovers. We stink like kangaroos in a cage."

And incredibly, the researcher concluded that Frenchmen have always been turned on by ladies who smell like three-day-old garbage.

MONKEY BOY BOOTED OUT OF SCHOOL FOR GROWING A BEARD!

By SUSAN JIMISON

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Furious school officials have kicked third-grader Henry Cotter out of school — because the cute little 8-year-old has grown a beard!

The monkey boy's parents, Frank and Mary Cotter, plan to fight their son's expulsion. They say Henry can't shave because his young skin is too tender and that it's unfair to kick the boy out of school.

The hairy-faced third-grader has become the focus of national attention ever since school officials informed his parents the boy could no longer attend public school.

He has appeared on television interviews sporting his brown beard and explaining that he wants to go to school with the other kids his age.

"It's not my fault that I have hair on my face," he told a newscaster. "They should let me study like my friends do."

Henry was born perfectly healthy and developed normally for the first six years of his life, according to news reports.

But when he was 7 years old he grew a fine hair on his chin and cheeks and several months later it developed into a full beard.

The Cotters took the child to doctors, who diagnosed his bizarre condition as the result of a premature onset of puberty. They told the worried parents that the condition — although rare — was not harmful.

Today, Henry's face is covered with a scruffy one-inch-long growth which has to be trimmed once a week.

"We tried shaving it off, but he has such a five-o'clock shadow that he really needs to shave twice a day," said Frank Cotter, a bus mechanic. "But when he shaves twice a day, his skin gets all raw and sore. We decided it was better for him to have the beard."

Cotter says his son gets along well with a few close friends, but that he is often taunted when he goes out on the street or meets kids he doesn't know. And the wrong with him, that's obvious," said one father of a student in Henry's class. "I don't want my daughter going to school where they have some hairy freak sitting in the desk next to her."

The Cotters have enrolled their son in a private tutoring program until the ruckus over his beard settles down. But they say they plan to sue the Johannesburg school board if their child isn't eventually returned to public school.

"Just because a child has a super-high male hormone level for his age is no reason to treat him like a monster," an angry Cotter said.

"We want Henry to have a normal life."

MUSIC LOWERS YOUR BLOOD PRESSURE

By JODI GUETTINA / Weekly World News

Music can help lower blood pressure, reduce your heart rate, help you relax, raise your [illegible] to pain, [illegible] sia, remove anxieties and help you through housework, top doctors say.

In fact, music can not only make you healthier, it can make you happier as well, the experts add.

"The benefits happen within 20 minutes of listening to music that pleases you," said psychiatrist Dr. Anthony Pietropinto.

"And the nice part about it is that you can receive all the benefits of listening right in your own home. In a favorite chair or lying down on a couch."

"Music is invaluable in helping us reduce the stress we encounter in everyday life. Often in my practice I prescribe music as an antidote for a depressed patient.

"Time and time again I have seen music cure the blues. It is almost miraculous the way people who are depressed respond positively to music."

Cardiologist Dr. Raymond Bahr said:

"Every one of us would benefit from getting into the relaxed state which soothing music promotes.

"We have found that soothing music in the coronary care unit promotes proper rest, which then reduces elevated heart rate and blood pressure."

According to psychiatrist Dr. Clancy McKenzie:

"Music's powerful effect on the human body is sometimes more beneficial than drugs," he said. "If insomniacs allow themselves to concentrate on the soothing influence of their favorite music, before long they're drifting off."

And as many mothers know, music helps restless babies.

Pain expert Dr. Gerald Aronoff noted that "music helps an individual to suffer less with pain."

He added that any therapy including music which can allow an individual to be distracted from pain and lessen anxiety has a "positive effect on pain tolerance."

Dr. Pietropinto agreed, "Music is invaluable to patients who have to deal with pain on a daily basis. Its calming influence is also a reason many people listen to music while performing daily tasks.

"It doesn't matter what you like. Whether it be classical, country or anything else, the kind of mu-

BRATS KILL BABYSITTER — & feed her to pet poodles!

EVIL KIDS Derek and Margaret Smith might have gotten away with murder if they'd had more time to get rid of the body, cops say

SYDNEY, Australia — Two vicious 6-year-olds got mad at their babysitter and clubbed her to death, cops say — then fed her corpse to their prize-winning poodles!

The evil kids — Derek Smith and his stepsister Margaret — are being held by police.

The family's seven dogs were destroyed and the partial remains of victim Thelma Watkins, 44, were recovered from their stomachs.

"What we found was right out of a horror movie," said police investigator Harold Anderson.

"The kids were bloodthirsty. They beat Mrs. Watkins to death with their father's golf clubs because she wouldn't let them have a soft drink between meals. Then apparently they panicked and decided to dispose of the body by feeding it to the dogs. They had to help the dogs out, of course, so they chopped the lady up with kitchen knives."

The grisly crime was discovered when a neighbor working in her yard heard screams and Downstairs in the house where the children lived, followed by an eerie silence.

Suspicious, she knocked on their door and found the kids alone in the house and covered with blood. The neighbor telephoned police, who arrived in time to find the family's seven purebred standard poodles polishing off the last of Mrs. Watkins.

"The kids might have gotten away with it if they'd had just a little more time to dispose of the body and clean up the mess," Detective Anderson said. "When we got there they had already bathed and changed their clothes.

"At first they denied that Mrs. Watkins had even been there, but when we saw the bloody dogs the children confessed. The little girl said the babysitter deserved what she got because she was a mean, ugly old lady and she wouldn't die when we whacked."

The children's parents, all on a short vacation, returned home and went into seclusion after police informed them of the crime.

The pint-size killers are being held in a juvenile home. Authorities say they haven't decided how to deal with defendants so young.

"These kids are just out of kindergarten," Det. Anderson said. "But they're totally rabbit ape kids I've ever known.

ASTROLOGICAL TO SEDUCING MAN WOMAN

You don't have to be an astrologer to use these tips to successfully seduce a mate

PASADENA, Calif. — You can win the man or woman of your dreams — simply by learning his or her astrological sign and applying a few simple techniques based on the zodiac!

That's right. Noted Spanish astrologer Marta Lasalidor says you can make your would-be lover fall for you, head over heels — by tailoring your approach to his or her star sign.

"They say knowledge is power," writes Miss Lasalidor in her forthcoming book Planets and Passion: The Sign by Sign Guide to Love and Romance.

"And there's no more powerful knowledge you can attain in the quest for love than your heart's specific likes and dislikes in the area of romance.

"The wonderful thing about astrology is that you can use it whether you are rich or poor, attractive or plain — even if your potential lover has seemed indifferent to you up to now.

"The secret is finding out what he or she is attracted to in a lover — and letting him or her see those qualities in you."

Here are some of Miss Lasalidor's tips on how to charm that perfect person into your life. The men and women of each sign are listed below, along with how to charm them to you.

ARIES

ARIES MAN — Be completely honest with him — even to the point of bluntness. He admires candor above all else.

ARIES WOMAN — She loves energy and enthusiasm. When you talk to her, use lots of gestures and keep your voice animated.

TAURUS

TAURUS MAN — He's the most sensuous guy in the zodiac. Give him gifts that are pleasing to the sense of touch, like silk shirts, a smooth marble sculpture or satin sheets.

TAURUS WOMAN — She too is sensuous. She loves beautiful sounds. Give her a CD featuring harp music. Take her to a concert. Or invite her to join you for an evening walk in the country as the crickets and night birds are beginning to call.

GEMINI

GEMINI MAN — He hates to be teased. Direct any — right up to the point of trampling over. But if he makes a move on you, don't give in too fast.

GEMINI WOMAN — She's highly ego-driven. Let her know you're willing to change subjects as quickly and effortlessly as she does.

CANCER

CANCER MAN — He loves women who don't take his moodiness personally. Let him know you're free and flexible. Don't let your own mood depend on his. If he's down in the dumps, tell him jokes and laugh a lot. He'll cheer up soon — and credit you.

CANCER WOMAN — She takes everything very personally. Avoid a few fights and be ready to talk to her about them. Give her a puzzle or a gift.

LEO

LEO MAN — The best approach you can use on this guy is to walk right up and compliment him. But be sincere. Don't say he has a great voice if he sounds like a rusty gate. He loves to hear good things about himself. But he can sense phoniness.

LEO WOMAN — She likes wilderness. Set aside long, afternoon jokes. Think of some short, clever things to say and, when you see her sparkle, throw them into your conversation.

VIRGO

VIRGO MAN — He's an idealist — sometimes short on humor. To impress him, draw him into conversations about honesty, morality and ethics . . . and listen thoughtfully.

VIRGO WOMAN — She wants to know you admire her mind. Compliment her on her observations, her choice of furniture and her display of automobile. Above all, NEVER tell her she's pretty.

LIBRA

LIBRA MAN — This guy is Mr. Romance. Send him valentines in July. Call him on the spur of the moment and ask him to join you for a moonlight walk.

Dedicate a song to him on the radio. But don't cross the line between romantic and raunchy.

LIBRA WOMAN — She loves the sound of stringed instruments. If you play guitar or violin, you're halfway there. If not, take her to a small cafe where they feature flamenco music.

SCORPIO
OCT. 23 — NOV. 21

SCORPIO MAN — These guys think about sex 24 hours a day. Without throwing yourself at him, let him know you're not afraid of your own sexual feelings. Tell him there's nothing you hate more than censorship, and that you loved the movie Basic Instinct.

SCORPIO WOMAN — To attract her, be mysterious. She loves enigmas. Your favorite answer to her questions should be, "I'll tell you when I know you better." Cultivate a deep, world-weary look and give her the impression you're an iceberg — that most of your life is below the surface.

SAGITTARIUS
NOV. 22 — DEC. 21

SAGITTARIUS MAN — He's an intellectual and philosopher. If you want to knock b o o k - stores and follow him around, ready to discuss the books he picks up.

Be warned, you may not be able to get him out of there for hours.

But when you do he'll think you're wonderful.

SAGITTARIUS WOMAN — You'll better be honest with this one. She can spot a lie 20 miles away. She would rather hear no compliment at all than listen to a false one.

To amend an old adage: If you can't say anything true, don't say anything at all.

CAPRICORN
DEC. 22 — JAN. 19

CAPRICORN MAN — He's economical to a fault. To make an impression on him, let him know you don't need expensive things to be happy.

If he asks where you want to go for dinner, suggest McDonald's.

If you want to go for dinner, suggest McDonald's.

If he asks what movie you want to see, say "Anything at the dollar cinema."

CAPRICORN WOMAN — She's materialistic. Tell her you're ambitious.

No matter what you do for a living, tell her you won't always be there, that you'll be running the company someday.

As a gift, she'd rather have jewelry than something useful.

AQUARIUS
JAN. 20 — FEB. 19

AQUARIUS MAN — He's Mr. Fix-it. If you want to please him, give him a broken machine or ask him to change a flat tire. Then tell him you're impressed when he takes care of it.

AQUARIUS WOMAN — Don't take her any place where there's loud music or crowd noise.

Take her on a boat ride on a quiet lake and avoid talking too much.

PISCES
FEB. 19 — MAR. 20

PISCES MAN — He hates complications and tends to be an escapist. To please him, tell him your big dream in life is to get away to a South Seas island and live a simple life.

PISCES WOMAN — She loves to play. As a gift, nothing makes her happier than a board game or a deck of cards. On a date, take her to a miniature golf course or a video arcade.

These are just a few of the many hints found in Miss Lasardor's 329-page book due out in ST. LOUIS, Mo. — This frisky kitty named Yoda nearly lost both ears in a heartbreaking case of animal abuse, but a nimble-fingered surgeon managed to reattach them — and now the mischievous monster is on her way to a happy new life!

Adorable Yoda's ears were nearly severed when her owner's 4-year-old son tapped a rubber band under her chin and around her ears. Over time, the rubber band cut into the pitiful kitten's ears and nearly sliced them off.

"The owner brought the cat in to us, and at first nobody realized what was wrong with the poor thing because the rubber band was concealed by her fur," said Rosemary Ficken, a supervisor at this city's Animal Regulation Center. "We were taking her picture and somebody held her chin up to get a better shot and that's when we discovered the problem. We got her to the vet right away and he managed to put her back together again."

The surgery left the feisty, 4-month-old feline's ears sticking out like the wings on a DC-9 — prompting captivated staffers at the animal center to dub her Yoda, after the pointy-eared character in Star Wars.

"Since Yoda's story hit the papers, we've had more than 120 calls from people wanting to adopt her," the center supervisor said. "So we're going to take our time and do a painstaking investigation of all the applicants — and this time Yoda's going to wind up in a nice home with people who will love her."

SUPERSTITIONS ARE GOOD FOR YOU!

Superstitions can help you reach your goals by making you feel lucky and giving you more confidence, says a psychologist.

"People may carry a lucky penny or charm with them, for example. That makes them feel lucky, which in turn gives them confidence so they can accomplish more," declared Dr. Elayne Kahn.

"Take the case of a guy who wants to ask his boss for a raise. He's scared and cougue-tied, so he takes his lucky charm lucky, confident, and more in control, so he's better able to make his case for a raise, said Dr. Kahn, co-author of 1001 Ways You Reveal Your Personality.

And superstitions can also help people ease their anxieties, Dr. Kahn revealed.

"For example, your daughter is 42 and you would like her to get married, or your husband just lost his job.

"These are situations you probably don't have much control over and would bone, for instance, you feel that you're doing something to bring about the change you want — and this can alleviate your anxiety over a situation you can't control."

And gambling superstitions — like always playing a certain number — increase your enjoyment of a game by making you feel luckier and more likely to win, added Dr. Kahn.

"So superstitions are one of the few

WHAT PEOPLE WHO'VE WON SAY

Listen to them. They left their bad luck behind. These are real testimonies. Some of them are incredible.

AT THE HIPPODROME

Mr. Richard L., of Brooklyn:

"... and then I won a lot of money. And we could pay for the surgery of my son. I always carry with me The Golden Clover"

A WISHED TRAVEL

Mrs. Anna K. of Los Angeles:

"I didn't believe in these things. We won so much in the Lotto that now we go to Europe every year"

FRESH MONEY

Mrs. Kim H., of Washington DC:

"I asked my husband many times to order The Clover. It was inspired. The money would never last us until the end of the month. Now we are almost millionaires, because we won money at the Casino many times"

A GOOD JOB

Mrs. Christine R., of Miami:

"My daughter had been unemployed for a whole year. She ordered The Clover and she got a job with an excellent monthly salary. She is so happy now. Thanks a lot"

THE WOMAN OF MY DREAMS

Mr. Charles A., of Phoenix:

"I found the woman that I always was looking for. Thanks to you and The Clover I recovered it"

MY OWN BUSINESS, FINALLY

Mrs. Angela F., of Michigan:

"I always dreamed of having my own [illegible]

YOUR LIFE CAN BE A NEW ONE

What the Four Leaf and 33 wishes Clover made for these people can do for you too. You don't have to believe in these things, but you have to admit that there is something in it. Because The Clover has a magnetic and powerful irradiation which reactivates the power of clairvoyance that is hidden in each one of us.

Think then that all of your unachieved dreams can become true. But the most incredible of this is the following. That you can return it if your biggest and most exalted wishes do not become true within 3 months of having received it. Why do we do this? Simple: because we are convinced that you will have good luck. A lot of good luck.

Perhaps the luck that you never imagine to have. We are so sure that we give you the guarantee of return. You may return it and we give you your money back. What did you lose? Nothing. Absolutely nothing. Because if it works for you, you win. If it doesn't work for you, you also win, because you get your money back. We are grateful. But we are sure that you won't return The Golden Clover. Good luck will be with you.

That is why we suggest that you send your order now. Don't waste any time. You will be very pleased when you receive it. Because your life will change as if by magic. In the envelope you will find The Clover and The Secret Manual to Make Your Wishes Come True. That is, how to make the luck wishes, the ones you have to give it. Where to carry it. Everything is explained there step by step.

Think that we appeal to such things to good luck only once in our lives. These things should be bought every day, like bread. It is just once in your lifetime. Please yourself. You don't lose anything. Don't you think it would be silly to let this opportunity of changing your life get away?

3 MONTHS OF TOTAL GUARANTEE

This is our offer. Order the true talisman chosen at will in 3 months you do not obtain 100% positive results, we will return it and reimburse your money. This is a written guarantee with which we are protecting the money that you invested.
